German Troops Reach Cherkessk Area near Armavir

Reported To Be only 200 Miles from Rich Grozny Oil Wells in the Caucasus

Russians Are Fighting Heavy Defensive Battles Both in Cherkessk and Maikop Areas; Nazis Break Through in Krasnodar Sector Sixty Miles Northwest of Maikop; Battle for Stalingrad Continues

By EDDY GILMORE
MOSCOW, Wednesday, Aug. 12.—German troops striking South-eastward in the Caucasus were reported today to be only 200 miles from the rich Grozny wells after overrunning the devastated Maikop oil region in the West.

A communique announced the Germans had reached the Cherkessk area, seventy miles southeast of Armavir, in a thrust down the Rostov-Baku railway into the Caucasian foothills. (Cherkessk, not shown on many maps, apparently is a town often listed as Kursavka).

The Germans have said their troops had captured Pyatigorsk, only 140 miles short of Grozny, but there still was no confirmation here of that claim.

The Russians were fighting "heavy defensive battles both in the Cherkessk and Maikop areas," the communique said, and the Germans also "broke through our positions" in the Krasnodar sector sixty miles northwest of Maikop.

Soviet tankmen and Cossacks picked off nineteen German tanks and thirty-seven trucks, and killed 50 Germans before withdrawing to new positions south of Krasnodar, the Russians said.

In the grim fight for the approaches to Stalingrad the Russians apparently still were holding firm.

"In the area south of Kletskaya (seventy-five miles northwest of Stalingrad), our troops carried out stubborn battles with tanks and enemy infantry," the communique said.

"The Germans are suffering tremendous losses. Bringing up reserves, they are attempting to break through. One large enemy motorized column has been dispersed by our troops."

Northwest of Kotelnikovsky, which is ninety-five miles southwest of Stalingrad, the communique said all types of weapons were in action, and "the enemy was forced to go over to defensive operations" in one area.

The Russians said that during a large tank battle preceding this development their Red army defeated the enemy.

War Department Announces Names Of Missing Men

New List of 86 Brings Total Killed or Missing to 1,202

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (P)—The War department announced today for local publication the names of eighty-six soldiers missing in action at sea. This brought the total of killed or missing men thus far made public by the army to 1,202.

In the list were the names of thirty-one officers and twelve enlisted men lost in the sinking of the Aircraft Tender Langley in the North Pacific and forty-three enlisted men who were aboard various merchant vessels. They represented thirty-three states and, in one case, the next of kin was listed as a resident of England.

The forty-three who were aboard merchant vessels included sixteen of the seventeen men reported from North Atlantic port June 23 to be missing from a cargo vessel sunk twenty-five miles off the New England coast. The body of one man who was on this ship was found and identified on the coast of Nova Scotia several days ago.

Some of these men were passengers aboard the merchant ships, while others were members of gun crews. Usually the gun crews on ships are made up of seamen, but occasionally army crews are attached.

In making the list public, the department specified that names were to be published only by newspapers and radio stations normally serving the areas in which the men were killed.

Roosevelt Seeks Facts and Figures On Labor Question

President Asks Newspaper Men As Many Questions as They Ask Him

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11. (P)—President Roosevelt wanted more facts and figures today before he would comment on press conference questions which referred to "wild cat" strikes in war industries, to lagging war production, and to possible remedial steps.

The president said he had not even heard that a West Coast conference on stabilization of wages in aircraft plants had blown up, with the understanding that it would convene this month in Washington. A reporter told him the conference had failed to meet here because the administration had failed to establish a wage policy.

"What would you think of a union steward in a war plant," a reporter inquired, "who deliberately told a man to produce less than a fair day's work?"

Get Facts, President Says
Who did that, the president wanted to know. After he was told it had happened in Flint and Muskegon, Mich., he suggested that his questioner dig up the facts and names and he would look into the matter.

Another newsman wanted to know his opinion of "various wild cat strikes occurring almost daily," although they are opposed by international officers of unions.

"Where?" the president countered. "Well, there was one yesterday in a Pittsburgh steel mill," Mr. Roosevelt said.

When the president inquired the name of the mill, the reporter said he thought it was a unit of Carnegie-Illinois.

Make a note of that, the president directed his press secretary, Stephen Early. That, too, will be looked up, he added.

"Seriously," his interrogator remarked, "there are a large number of wild cat strikes. Haven't they come to your attention?"

He had heard of a few, the president replied, but he said he thought a few more facts were needed. Mr. Roosevelt said at that point that from reading some newspapers, about six months ago, the impression would have prevailed at the time that seventy-five per cent of munitions plants were on strike whereas, he said, actually only 1 1/2 per cent, or perhaps it was one half of one per cent, were on strike.

Have You Seen A War Labor Board statement that laws of treason might have to be resorted to in the situation? was the next question.

Still asking as many questions on his own part as were put to him, Mr. Roosevelt wanted to know (Continued on Page 7, Col. 1)

U. S. MARINES HAVE OPENED DOOR FOR PACIFIC OFFENSIVE, NAVY SAYS

Units Are Trained To Assault An Objective Under Live Ammunition

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (P)—The navy declared today in a statement detailing preparations for the marine landings on Solomon Islands that the marines have opened the door to an Allied offensive in the South Pacific.

NAZIS CLOSE IN TOWARD MAIKOP OIL FIELDS

After a major break through of Red lines defending the Caucasus, German troops are smashing toward Russia's important Maikop oil fields from two directions, Berlin claiming capture of Armavir and Kurgannaya—the latter only 30 miles from Maikop. Northeastward, savage tank battles are in progress in the Kotelnikovsky and Kletskaya areas in the Nazi effort to clamp a pincer about Stalingrad.

Truth of Ground Marker Story Is Being Questioned

War Department Says Army Release "May Be Untrue"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (P)—The War department today questioned the truth of a story released by army press agents on Monday, telling of the discovery and obliteration of indigenous ground markers intended to guide enemy bombers to airfields and war production plants.

Asserting the story "may be untrue," the War department said that Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the Eastern Defense Area, with headquarters at Governors Island, N. Y., was conducting a thorough investigation. The release was distributed from Mitchell Field, N. Y.

Grain Sacks Are Markers
The story, and pictures, had to do with sacks of grain stacked in a field in the form of a figure nine with the tail of the figure pointing to an aircraft plant, and plowed fields or woodland clearings shaped like arrows pointing to defense plants and air fields.

From the Washington Star, meanwhile, came word that the grain sacks were bags of fertilizer tossed at random from a moving truck on a Virginia farm, to dry in the sun. A woodland clearing, the Star said, had been determined to be a feeding ground for birds, established by the state of New Jersey.

The Star also said that it and other newspapers which published the story and pictures "were the victims of over-zealous army press agency, and as a result, participated unwittingly in what appears to be the great air marker hoax."

Both the fertilizer sack figure and the bird sanctuary clearing, were attended to months ago by the army, after the pictures published yesterday were taken, the Star said. The fertilizer sacks, it added, were on the farm of C. Russell.

Jap Force on Aleutians Is Attacked by U. S. Navy

Five Air Attacks and One Naval Bombardment Made on Kiska; Americans Sink Cargo Ship

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (P)—The Navy announced tonight that five air attacks and one naval bombardment of Japanese forces in the Aleutians recently had resulted in sinking one enemy cargo ship and damaging two others and in heavy damage to shore facilities.

The U. S. losses were reported as one observation plane. The Japanese, in addition to their other losses, also had two four-engine seaplane bombers shot down by American pursuit craft but whether they were caught in the attacks on Japanese-held territory or in some separate action was not stated.

The communique, reporting chiefly on the North Pacific area, referred only briefly to the South Pacific saying that "while the action in the Tulagi area of the Solomon Islands continues, nothing further can be reported at this moment."

Communique on Aleutians
The communique, Number 103, based on reports received up to 6 p. m. Eastern War Time, said: "North Pacific area—

"1. Information received by the Navy Department now makes it possible to report the following incidents in the Aleutian Islands:

"2. On July 22 Army bombers dropped bombs through the fog in the area of Kiska harbor. Results were unobserved.

"3. On July 29 Navy patrol planes conducted a night attack on Kiska and Army bombers attacked (Continued on Page 7, Col. 2)

IMMIGRATION BUREAU INVESTIGATES CONDITION OF INTERNEED GREEKS

Sailors Held in Baltimore City Jail Complained of Food

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11 (P)—A representative of the United States Bureau of Immigration today investigated conditions under which interned Greek sailors have been living in the Baltimore City jail following complaints to Maryland's Senator Radcliffe from two Greek community leaders.

Senator Radcliffe said he asked action of immigration officials following a letter describing "rather drastic treatment of the Greek sailors" from Rev. Joakim Papachristou, pastor of the Greek Orthodox Church, and Constantine Pecunios, president of the Greek community in Baltimore.

Jail Warden Charles P. Price reported that an immigration official

Hamilton Fish Is Renominated For Congress

Overcomes Three Opponents and Opposition of Wendell L. Willkie

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 11 (P)—Rep. Hamilton Fish overcame three opponents and intra-party opposition led by Wendell L. Willkie tonight to win Republican renomination in President Roosevelt's home Congressional district.

Widely attacked by rival candidates and many Republican leaders for what they termed his pre-war isolationist views, the veteran of twenty-two years in Congress and caustic peace-time administration critic held a decisive lead after slightly more than half the primary vote was tabulated.

The vote in 122 of 223 districts was Fish, 9,366; Augustus W. Bennett, 3,682; Emerson D. Fite, 622, and Edward J. Bowen, 63.

Two other congressmen against whom the pre-Pearl Harbor isolationist cry was raised also were making strong bids for renomination.

One, Rep. Edwin A. Hall (R), of Binghamton, polled a vote of 7,426 to 7,071 for John C. Stott in 174 of 288 precincts in the Thirty-fourth district.

A Democrat, William B. Barry, in 46 of 546 districts in New York City's Second Congressional district held a lead of 2,346 to 857 votes over William F. Brunner.

The bitter fight involving Fish, ranking Republican member of the House Foreign Affairs committee who represents President Roosevelt's home district, overshadowed twenty-five other congressional contests in balloting which tested presidential influence and pre-war foreign policies. Ten other incumbents were opposed for renomination.

Voters nominated forty-three national representatives and 201 state legislators, and chose convention delegates who will pick candidates for governor later this month.

Willkie Opposes Fish
Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, led the intra-party drive against Fish, an outspoken critic of the administration's foreign policy before Pearl Harbor.

Fish's opponents were Augustus W. Bennett, Newburgh attorney; State Assemblyman Emerson D. Fite, Vassar college political science professor, and Edward J. Bowen, a frequently unsuccessful candidate.

The isolationist issue also was raised against Rep. Vito Marcantonio, American Labor Party left wing leader supported by Mayor F. H. La Guardia, and Rep. William B. Barry, Democrat, both of New York City, and Rep. Edwin A. Hall and Rep. Daniel A. Reed, Republicans of Binghamton and Dunkirk, respectively.

Selection of delegates to the Democratic convention, Aug. 19, was expected to disclose the respective strength of the party's two governing candidates, United States Senator James M. Mead and State Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr. Many delegates were unopposed.

FDR Would Vote for Mead
President Roosevelt has asserted he would vote for Mead if he were a delegate to the convention. State Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, Mr. Roosevelt's former campaign manager, is backing Bennett.

Friends of Thomas E. Dewey, unsuccessful 1938 Republican gubernatorial candidate, claims sufficient pledges to assure his renomination. The president did not vote in the primary. He had said there was not much of a Democratic contest in his congressional district. Bowen, one of Fish's opponents, also was a Democratic candidate against Ferdinand A. Hoyt.

STRONG MEASURES TO BE USED TO QUELL INDIA RIOTERS

Governor of Bombay Province Says Order Will Be Maintained at Any Cost

By PRESTON GROVER
BOMBAY, Aug. 11 (P)—The governor of populous Bombay province tonight ordered massed police patrols and British Army machine-gunners to use the strongest measures to quell disorders in this storm center of the Gandhi Free India Campaign.

The stern new order came after troops and police had fired into many unruly crowds.

"I cannot allow this disturbance of the life of the city to continue," said the governor, Sir Roger Lumley.

"I am going to maintain order at any cost. To those, therefore, who may be thinking of going on with these disturbances, I now give this plain warning: the police and troops have orders to take the strongest measures whenever necessary."

Footholds in Solomons Are Being Held Despite Strong Counter Attacks

American Troops Are Fighting Ashore in Vital Tulagi Harbor Area as Allied Planes Give Japanese Points Deadly Battering along 2,000 Mile Front; New Convoys Arrive in Australia

By C. YATES McDANIEL
GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Wednesday, Aug. 12 (P)—Allied bombers showered bombs last night on the big Japanese base of Rabaul, New Britain, in a valuable flanking attack to support the United States Marines who have established footholds in the Solomon Islands and are holding their ground despite fierce Japanese counterattacks.

A communique issued here today still avoided all specific mention of the continuing battle of the Solomons, across the Coral sea, but Prime Minister John Curtin said yesterday "we are holding our own" in that action.

Rabaul Airdrome Attacked Again
Allied airmen attacked the Rabaul airdrome for the fourth time in as many days, the communique said, and two and possibly five Japanese fighter planes were destroyed north of Samarai, which is on the Southeastern tip of New Guinea directly west of the Tulagi area where United States Naval, Air, and Marine forces were in action against the Japanese Solomon bases.

The remaining two Japanese fighters out of a flight of seven encountered in the Samarai area were reported damaged.

Striking northwest and north of Australia Allied airmen again attacked Japanese shipping off Timor, Dutch East Indies island, where three Japanese ships, including a large destroyer, were reported knocked out Monday. A cargo ship was sunk in Monday's attack, it was announced officially today, but the result of the second raid was not known.

Direct hits on Japanese-held wharfs and buildings in the Kei Islands northeast of Timor also were reported.

OPA Announces Slight Increase In Food Prices

Nation's Food Bill Will Be Boosted about One and One-Half Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (P)—Widespread "adjustments in food prices" which reportedly may boost the nation's food bill about one and one-half percent will be authorized for retailers and wholesalers by mid-September, Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced today.

However, he warned, until the new OPA formula is worked out to relieve a price "squeeze" on hundreds of food items, prices must remain at the March levels fixed by the central maximum price regulations.

Some pricing method, as an alternative to the general maximum requirements, was necessary to avert any disturbances in the nation's food distribution system, Henderson declared. The advance announcement of OPA's plans will permit distributors to contract with food processors immediately for next year's merchandise.

Officials pointed out that the use of March as OPA "ceiling price month" caught food distributors with many selling prices based on costs of stocks bought months before. Meanwhile, replacement costs had risen for many items and distributors could not restock except at the risk of cash losses.

Unless this "squeeze" were relieved, low priced distributors, wholesale and retail, would have been compelled to drop important lines of food products, and food would have moved to consumers through distributors who had relatively high sellings, they said.

Primary Elections Leave Observers In Quandary

Hamilton Fish Is Renominated; Sweeney Is Defeated in Ohio

[By The Associated Press] Political observers who had looked to yesterday's primaries in five states for some sign as to likely effects of pre-war foreign policy stands on off-year congressional elections found themselves in a quandary today (Wednesday).

On the one hand, Representative Hamilton Fish, pre-war critic of President Roosevelt's foreign policy and labeled an isolationist by his three opponents, overcame their opposition as well as that led by Wendell L. Willkie to win Republican renomination in the president's home district.

At the same time, Representative Martin L. Sweeney, veteran Ohio Democratic congressman who also opposed pre-war foreign policies of the administration, went down to defeat in his bid for renomination.

Most Incumbents Lead

The only clear-cut trend indicated from the early returns elsewhere that incumbent congressmen, for the most part, appeared to be over-riding opposition in seeking their parties' primary re-approval, regardless of pre-war positions.

Added to the unsettled issues was the New York Republican gubernatorial battle which attracted national attention along with the Fish campaign because of the test of presidential power involved. Senator James M. Mead and State Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., carried the respective endorsements of President Roosevelt and former Postmaster General James A. Farley—but Tuesday's tilt was strictly to select state convention delegates. The real fight will come later when pledges are sought from those elected yesterday.

Meanwhile, in the Arkansas Democratic primary run-off, Attorney General Jack Hold conceded victory to former Congressman John L. McClellan in their race for the United States Senate.

Two other New York Congressmen, Rep. Edwin A. Hall, Birmingham Republican, and William B. Barry, New York City Democrat, both of whom faced the pre-Pearl Harbor isolationist cry, were making strong bids for renomination. A third, Representative Daniel A. Reed, veteran Republican who also was branded as isolationist by opposition, was renominated in the Forty-Third district.

United States Senator John Thomas of Idaho, accused by opponents on "non-support" of administration measures before the war, took an early lead for republican renomination.

In Ohio, two of Sweeney's Republican congressional colleagues who took a similar position as the veteran senator prior to Pearl Harbor, appeared to be assured renomination. They were Representatives Charles H. Elston and John M. Vorys.

In Nebraska, Representative Harry B. Coffee conceded to Foster May, Omaha radio announcer, the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat now held by the Veteran George W. Norris, who did not run in the primary.

In the Republican Senatorial contest, State Chairman Kenneth S. Wherry stepped far in front of his opponents.

In other contests throughout the five states which held primaries, returns came in more slowly, and attention continued to center on the gubernatorial race, despite its indecisive start.

Germany May Cease Russian Offensive

Informed Sources Says Nazis Have Realized Goal

ISTANBUL, Aug. 10 (Delayed)—The possibility that Germany may already have attained most of her 1942 objectives in Russia and that she may be ready now to halt her offensive on the eastern front and consolidate her positions for the winter was indicated today by a neutral official who, demanding anonymity, claimed direct German information.

Quoting as his informant a Nazi propaganda "inspector" now visiting Turkey on official business, this neutral official said that Germany plans to erect an "eastern wall" before the winter and retire behind it with a peace proposal.

The new German east wall, it was said, would run across the northern Caucasus mountains, which the Germans have just about reached in their drive down the Caucasus, and along the Volga river from Astrakhan through the regions of Stalingrad and Voronezh and thence roughly along the present front to the Leningrad area.

The German was quoted further as saying that "We know we cannot defeat America," although it was not clear why this remark was made.

Indian Mob Burns Town Hall; Moslem Policeman Murdered

NEW DELHI, Wednesday, Aug. 12 (AP)—An Indian mob burned and virtually destroyed the town hall here last night and troops fired on civilian crowds in a situation that "became ugly" early today, an official statement announced.

An ominous turn in the Hindu independence movement also developed when a Moslem police inspector "was murdered by an angry crowd near the railway clearing accounts office," the statement said.

Average American Work Week Shows One-Hour Increase

Long Hours of Farmer Accounts for Greater Part of Rise

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP)—Under the demands of war production, the average work week of American workers increased by one hour, from 45.7 to 46.7, during the year ended in June, the Works Progress Administration reported today.

The long hours of farmers and farm employees accounted for the greater part of the average rise. The WPA found that the ruralist's work week had gone up 1.8 hours from 55.4 to 57.2, while the increase was eight-tenths of an hour for non-agricultural workers.

Nearly 44,000,000 of the 53,000,000 employed persons in June were working forty hours or more a week, according to the survey.

The fact that over that one-sixth of all employed persons in June, 1942, worked less than forty hours a week suggests a considerable degree of unused capacity in the labor force now employed, said WPA Commissioner Philip B. Fleming. "It must be remembered, however, that in many jobs outside the war lines only part-time workers are needed, and many workers have domestic or other responsibilities that would keep them out of the labor market entirely if they could not find part-time jobs."

The WPA reported that between June, 1941, and this June, employment increased by 3,100,000 persons.

WILLIAM GREEN URGES SOLIDARITY IN LABOR RANKS OF NATION

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Aug. 11 (AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, told delegates to the convention of the United Garment Workers of America today that "as American workers we should do everything to bring about solidarity" in the labor ranks.

"We can do more as one great organization than we can if 10,000,000 workers are divided," Green said.

But while he was declaring himself for solidarity, Green also scored the CIO for leaving the AFL ranks in 1935 and said "in my opinion, they will never quite pay for the wrong committed until they admit the error of their ways and come back into our house."

Green charged that the CIO had failed to "lead its members into the promised holy land."

Gandhi's Son Says India Was Asked To Fight And Crushed within

DURBAN, UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA, Aug. 11 (AP)—Manilal Gandhi, speaking today at a Communist meeting against the arrest of his father, Mohandas K. Gandhi, said India was asked to fight the enemy outside the gates while crushed by the enemy within.

The meeting urged the release of All-India Congress leaders and removal of the ban on the party.

Actor Lionel Atwill Is Indicted for Perjury

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11 (AP)—Actor Lionel Atwill was indicted by the county grand jury today on a charge of perjuring himself June 30 when he was questioned about reports of immoral acts involving a sixteen year old girl at a party at his home.

Atwill previously was indicted on a perjury charge in testimony given the 1941 grand jury about purported wild parties at his home. The actor will be tried Sept. 15 on both charges. He is at liberty under $2,500 bond.

Prisoner Is Captured

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Aug. 11 (AP)—Faint with hunger, Edward Wagman, 20, of near Hanover, was captured yesterday at nearby Brush Run five days after he and a companion escaped from the Adams county jail.

The youth was apprehended by two members of a 30-man posse organized by Sheriff Dan J. Wolff. Wagman told officers he had only one good meal since he escaped. He said he had spent most of the time hiding in a field near Brush Run, his miles district.

Six companions, James Taylor, 19, of Huntington, W. Va., was captured after a truck driver turned in the alarm.

Elston and Vorys Lead in Ohio GOP Race for Congress

Incumbents Were Assailed by Opponents as Pre-War Isolationists

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11 (AP)—A veteran Ohio Democratic congressman who opposed pre-war foreign policies of the administration went down to defeat tonight in his bid for renomination.

Two Republican congressional colleagues who took a similar position before Pearl Harbor, appeared, however, to be assured renomination in returns from today's primary. They were Reps. Charles H. Elston of the First district (Cincinnati) and John M. Vorys of the Twelfth (Columbus).

Rep. Martin L. Sweeney, who was opposed by Democratic party leaders in the Twentieth (Cleveland) district, by all three Cleveland newspapers and the Democratic Mayor Frank J. Lausche, trailed Michael A. Feighan, Cleveland attorney and former state legislator.

Returns from 175 of 277 precincts gave: Feighan 10,796; Sweeney 7,385.

Sweeney, who has been in Congress since 1931, issued a statement tonight asserting he would "let time and history vindicate my position." "It is a difficult assignment," he added, "to try to beat a combination of newspapers, Communists and misguided persons."

Feighan had told citizens that they would show by their vote whether Cleveland was for or against President Roosevelt's war measures.

Rep. Elston, whose opponent called him the "man Friday" of United States Senator Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), received 4,164 votes in returns from 300 of 389 precincts. His opponent, Victor Heintz, got 1,147.

Rep. Vorys, a world war flyer, piled up 5,127 votes in 150 of 582 precincts. His opponent, Melville D. Frank, received 1,758.

A five-man contest for the Democratic nomination for governor developed into a two-man race with former Congressman John McSweeney of Wooster clinging to a slight margin over State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

McSweeney was endorsed by Charles Sawyer, Democratic national committeeman, Ferguson leaned heavily upon a personal organization built up during six years in the auditor's office.

The three other candidates virtually out of the running were Walter F. Heer, Columbus Democratic leader; Clarence H. Kingsley, former state treasurer, and Frank A. Dye, Columbus attorney.

The tabulation of 4,212 out of 8,853 precincts gave: McSweeney 48,314; Ferguson 44,314; Heer 16,310; Kingsley 22,158; Dye 5,700.

Will Oppose Bricker

The Democratic gubernatorial nominee will run in the Nov. 3 election against a two-term Republican governor, John W. Bricker, who was renominated for the fourth time today without opposition.

Leaders in other state office contests were: George D. Nye, Democratic lieutenant governor; Herbert S. Duffy, Democratic attorney general; Robert S. Cox, Democratic treasurer; and Edward J. Hummel, Republican secretary of state.

Four state officials were renominated without opposition. They were Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, Treasurer Don H. Ebbright and Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert, Republican, and Secretary of State John E. Sweeney, Democrat.

The counting of returns ended perhaps the quietest Ohio primary election day in twenty-two years.

B. and O. Changes Names of Engines

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11 (AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad is reconditioning ten old type locomotives at its Mount Clare shops for use in the war-time transportation crush—and changing their names, too.

The old locomotives, unused since the early days of the depression, were known as "Mikados" or "Mikes," but their new name, for obvious reasons, will be "MacArthurs."

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 11 (AP)—The diplomatic exchange liner Gripsholm, returning Americans from Japanese territories, departed for New York this afternoon with no stops scheduled en route.

The 550-mile, 24-inch line is a war emergency project to help relieve the eastern seaboard's fuel oil shortage. In white shirt inspecting the pipeline is Burt E. INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The unchecked drive of Hitler's war machine puts the Germans within sight of attaining one of the prime objectives of their whole Russian campaign—the complete control of the Black Sea as a transportation route.

The top Nazi schemers probably are just as eager to win control of this historic 700-mile long link between Europe and Asia as they are to seize the North Caucasus oil fields.

The day's dispatches reported the invaders to be directly imperiling two points on the Black Sea's eastern shore, Novorossisk and Tuapse, which are almost the last remaining operating bases for the Red fleet. If these ports fall, the battered naval force will be cornered at Batum, facing destruction or the stark choice of internment in neutral Turkey, scuttling, or some final act of desperation.

Germans Press Southward

This peril has become fairly obvious as the Germans pressed southward from Rostov. Probably less appreciated is the key importance of the inland sea to their further advances eastward, and to the Nazi grand plot of conquest and a self-sufficient Europe.

From the start, transport by war-damaged, overworked railways and by motor truck over poor and congested roads has been an Axis bottleneck, just as high seas shipping remained the crucial weakness of the United Nations war effort.

Access to the oil and grain of the Caucasus promises therefore only limited profit to the conquerors unless it includes control of the water route by which bulky cargoes immemorably have been moved between Southern Russia and Europe. If a reminder of the relative importance of water, land and air transportation is needed it is supplied just now by the fuel oil and gasoline shortage in the United States resulting from the U-boat harassment of the American coastal tanker fleet.

Within Hitler's Europe the problem of transport is notoriously and progressively worse. In Eastern Europe Rumanian oil was sold in Turkey last winter because it could not be shipped to shivering Italy.

Constructing Pipe Line

Now Berlin is rejoicing in the prospect of being able to link the Black sea as a transportation route with the Mediterranean, which already is partly under Axis control, and unquestionably hopes as well to win Leningrad and with it the entire Baltic sea highway of the North.

As a step to exploit the prospective Black sea opportunity, a new pipe line is reported now to be under construction inland from the Bulgarian port of Varna.

Novorossisk is not yet in Nazi hands, of course, and Ankara dispatches report a belief in the Turkish capital that the rugged Caucasus foothills may make this port a more difficult nut to crack even than Sevastopol.

Another possible restraint on Axis confidence is the amount of shipping available after three years of losses at sea which may have been in proportion, even heavier than those of the United Nations.

Grow Nitrogen For the Garden

ITHACA, N. Y. (AP)—Gardeners are urged to make sure of a nitrogen supply in the garden, now. No one knows whether fertilizers will have the needed nitrogen next spring, according to Prof. E. Van Alstine, of the agronomy department at Cornell University.

The way to get it in the soil for next year's crops is to seed legumes, he says. He particularly recommends Ladino clover, which requires only two pounds of seed to the acre for a perfect stand.

"Clover will not take the place of phosphorus or potash in fertilizer," he said, "and some extra nitrogen will usually increase yields. There is no reason, however, why home gardeners should not grow part of the nitrogen supply."

The Bride Wore Silk Stockings

KENTON, England. (AP)—Able Seaman Jack (Rusty) Steel kept his promise to bring his fiancée three pairs of silk stockings as a wedding gift, but it was a narrow squeeze.

When H.M.S. Wild Swan was sunk while returning to Britain after 14 months' foreign service, Jack managed to snatch up the stockings before abandoning ship. Yes, his fiancée, Joyce Brook, wore a pair when she tripped to the altar in this Middlesex town after Jack had recovered in the hospital.

Contingent of 15 Dogs Is Inducted Into U. S. Army

Canine "Selectees" Will Receive Special Training at Front Royal, Va.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11 (AP)—The army's not going to the dogs—the dogs are going to the army.

By way of proof, a contingent of fifteen canine "selectees" left by army truck today for the remount station at Front Royal, Va., where they will be "inducted."

They were Maryland's first contingent of high class pooches slated to become army specialists in the fullest sense of the word.

Before long some of them will be hauling sleds, others will be in the front lines and still others will be working for the Red Cross or standing guard at some strategic post.

Edward T. Boswell, an executive of the Maryland Kennel Club and regional head of the Dogs for Defense, Inc., said, "these are our 1-AA dogs. They are the best of the best. Hundreds more will be inducted before long to meet the army's estimated need of 125,000."

"All will be given the most careful training," Boswell continued. "They will become specialists just as human selections become specialists. Wherever American fighting forces go, these dogs will go with them."

Some of the new four-legged soldiers have already received partial training under the auspices of Dogs for Defense. The greenhorns, however, will become "yardbirds" at a canine "boot school" where they, like soldiers, will learn the fundamentals of their jobs.

Japs Are Expected To Hold Aleutians

Anthropologist Says Weather Makes It Impossible To Attack

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11 (AP)—Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, noted anthropologist of the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, said today the Japanese would probably retain their Aleutian island footholds until the end of the war.

He asserted the Japs took the islands because they were unopposed, and sudden storms, constant fogs and perilous waters made it impossible for United States forces to conduct operations against them.

Difficulties of transportation due to under water rock formations and storms which reach hurricane velocity within fifteen minutes make navigation near the rocky, barren islands of Attu, Agattu and Kiska frequently impossible, Hrdlicka said in an address to the Baltimore Rotary Club.

He said the Jap positions on these islands represented a real threat to fisheries and canneries only 900 miles away on Bristol Bay and to the North Pacific Shipping Lines.

Dr. Hrdlicka, who made extensive explorations in the Aleutians between 1926 and the start of the present war, added, however: "They will pay for it, though. I should be sorry if we were in the Japs' place."

13-YEAR-OLD BOY FOOLED RECRUITERS BUT GOT HOMESICK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP)—Nick Chantiles is home from the army with an honorable discharge—all because of a letter.

But, despite the fact that he would much rather be in "the big fight," he is spreading the word around for civilians to write more letters to the soldiers.

You see, Nicholas never got a letter from home during his brief stretch in the service. His family didn't know where to find him until, after thirty-eight days, he broke down and wrote them from a camp in Louisiana.

Then Mr. and Mrs. Philip Chantiles got busy with birth certificates, affidavits and such, finally convincing the army that "John Corbin, 21, of Dallas, Texas," who enlisted at Norton, Va., last May was none other than their missing thirteen-year-old son Nicholas.

So young Nick, who weighs about 160 pounds and looks like the man he said he was, is the idol of the block today, and one of the youngest "men" ever to serve Uncle Sam for even so brief a time.

And he's serious about those letters. He knows.

Grymes Is Promoted To Rank of Colonel

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11 (AP)—Major General Malton A. Record, commanding general of the Third Service Command, today announced the promotion of Lieut. Col. Herbert L. Grymes, to the rank of colonel in the infantry.

Grymes, a native Baltimorean began his military career in 1912 when he enlisted in Troop A, Maryland National Guard. He served overseas as a captain during World War I, was wounded and received the Purple Heart medal. He was twice cited for gallantry in action and received the Silver Star medal with palm.

He is now serving as a member of the Permanent Reclassification board and the control branch, headquarters Third Service Command.

SEVERAL PERSONS ARE KILLED IN CLASHES WITH DELHI POLICE

NEW DELHI, Aug. 11 (AP)—Several persons had been killed up to late tonight at Delhi in clashes between police and civilians during which a mob attempted to set fire to the city hall and succeed in overturning and burning a military truck.

Troops were called out to support the police when the rioting began.

In mid-evening the authorities had the main street fairly well cleared and had posted troops with tommy-guns at strategic corners.

Japanese Reported Landing Additional Troops at Haiphong

Reinforcements Increase Threat of Invasion to Troubled India

CHUNGKING, Aug. 11 (AP)—A Chinese army spokesman said today Japanese reinforcements had landed at Haiphong, French Indo-China, on July 27, presumably to be sent into Thailand and Burma where they would increase the threat of invasion to troubled India. An attack on India was possible, he said.

"The Tokyo radio on Sunday urged the people of India to rise against 'their British oppressors,' and said: 'such action would certainly have full success because picked Japanese troops are standing in readiness on the India-Burma frontier to take up the fight against the British troops.'"

The spokesman said the new troops, bolstering those already in Burma and Thailand, could be used for an attack on Yunnan province in Southern China if they were not employed against India.

Another massing of Japanese troops was reported in Formosa, with Japanese warships once more active off the southern coast, indicating a possible new invasion of Fukien province.

Meanwhile, Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced that fighter-escorted American bombers had made a low altitude attack Monday on Hankow and its vicinity, bombing new warehouses and other vital objectives.

Britain Reveals Use of New Heavy Lancaster Bomber

Weights 30 Tons; Has Range of 3,000 Miles and Flies 300 Miles Hourly

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP)—Britain took her Avro Lancaster off the secret list today and British aeronautics writers quickly hailed the battle-tested machine as the biggest and fastest heavy bomber in the world.

The newly unveiled giant, like its famous team-mate in raids on Germany—the short Stirling—carries an eight-ton bomb load, but its pace of 300 miles per hour and up is better than the Stirling's. The Lancaster is armed with ten .303-caliber machine-guns mounted in four power turrets.

It has a maximum range of 3,000 miles, a thousand more than the Stirling, and is thus the prime weapon for bold raids on selected targets deep in Germany. Its first officially disclosed operation was the daring daylight raid on Augsburg last April 17.

In July several Lancaster squadrons made the longest daylight attack flight of the European war—1,750 miles through bad weather to bomb the Danzig submarine yards.

The Lancaster's weight is thirty tons. It has a wing spread of 102 feet and a thirty-three-foot bomb compartment.

McNulty Will Heed Radio Services

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11 (AP)—Col. Henry S. Barrett announced today the appointment of Thomas F. McNulty of Baltimore as director of the War Emergency Radio Services for Maryland.

Barrett, state director of Air Raid Precautions, said McNulty would be charged with the organization and co-ordination of amateur radio operators throughout the state into a communication network.

Barrett said it was important such a system be established because a network of amateur radio operators might prove "invaluable in case of saboteurs or parachutists or whenever other means of communication were put out of action."

Music Specials
Devotees of classical music should find a satisfying number of programs Wednesday. "Great Moments in Music" on CBS at 10:00 will present an all-Schubert program, with soloists including Soprano Jean Tennyson, Tenor Jan Peerce and Baritone Robert Weede. Ballet music from Beethoven's "Prometheus" will be offered by the Columbia Concert Orchestra at 3:30. Guest of Nellie Revell over NBC at 12:30 p. m. will be Ford Bond, fifteen years an announcer. Bond studied medicine but decided he would make a better soloist than doctor and took a "temporary" announcing job in Louisville. Third choice gave him a career. Columnists Show Need for a Change

OBSERVATIONS by two of the columnists printed elsewhere on this page are worth the thoughtful perusal of readers.

Paul Mallon reports the discovery by Senate leaders who are examining the new tax measure passed by the House that it embodies confiscatory provisions to such an extent that many business concerns, large as well as small, would be forced out of profitable operations into the red with consequent loss of revenues needed by the government. The discovery is backed by citations.

The finding corroborates criticisms that have been heretofore directed at the new tax bill and again stresses the need for the maintenance of a healthy domestic economy sufficient to support the huge war program and to supply the funds as well as the materials with which to carry it on. The hampering provisions of the tax bill are disconcerting, indeed, and give good ground for the reported wonderment of Senate Finance committee members as to how a bill "so filled with disastrous mistakes" could ever have been sanctioned by the House.

David Lawrence's column reacts to the recent complaint by Elmer Davis, chief of the New Office of War Information, that America is as yet only "ankle deep" in the war by pointing to the laggardness of official Washington in its war activities. The vast government bureaus, which could have been converted to war activities, he says, are still pursuing their customary ways and showing that they are "hardly in the war at all." That is to say, if America is not sufficiently war conscious, inefficient, indifferent, leech-like government is chiefly at fault.

The things thus reported are deplorable, indeed, and indicate as impressively as anything the need for a change of legislative action in Washington, opportunity to effect which will confront citizens at the coming elections. They can be corrected by retiring the yes-men and the selfish-minded congressmen and electing in their stead representatives of ability and courage who will see to it that such mischievous and disastrous things are stopped.

A Podiatric Corps For the Army

NAPOLEON'S BRIGHT REMARK about an army's marching on its stomach has served to distract attention from the prosaic fact that feet still have a function in getting a soldier from one place to another. They also help men in offices and factories, whether they stand all day or move about.

This consideration has led the Podiatry Society of the State of New York to urge that podiatrists be included on the staffs of defense industries and be commissioned as officers in the army medical corps. The navy has forty-two podiatrists with the rank of ensign, while the army hasn't a single one. Regular medics have to care for the feet of the infantry.

The Podiatry society estimates that one out of every eleven men in the armed forces of the United States has defective feet—and about fifty per cent of all civilians. Despite the mechanization of many army branches, foot troubles reduce efficiency almost as much as they ever did. Weak arches, bunions and other defects can interfere seriously with a soldier's training and later with his fighting. In such cases, even dodging bullets will hardly keep a man's mind off his feet.

The podiatrists say that they have 1,200 experts available for immediate service, and they argue that as thirteen per cent of the time lost through injuries in industry is due to foot injuries, podiatrists should have a regular status both in the army and in industry. It does seem that establishment of a podiatric corps in the army would relieve physicians of the medical corps for more urgent duties, especially if there is a shortage of doctors in the armed forces.

A Heartening Sign on Taxes

THE CORDIAL RECEPTION which most members of the Senate Finance committee gave to some sensible tax suggestions was a heartening sign. The suggestions were that individuals and corporations be allowed some credit for paying old debts, for insurance premiums and for the purchase of government bonds. The heartening sign is this hint that Congress may be veering toward realism in tax law writing.

Writing tax laws by political pressure groups inevitably results in contests to lay the burden on the other fellow, and enough concessions by politicians to lay an intolerable burden, finally, on every one. The policy today is the result of "soaking the rich" so often that they not only can pay no more taxes, but are taxed so heavily that money that should go into new enterprises and business progress is drained off and squandered by the government. It is the old story of killing the goose that laid the golden eggs.

The new tax rates that went into effect this year have accentuated the injustice of the policy. They have forced many corporations and individuals to borrow to pay taxes, or—and it amounts to the same thing—to dip into capital in an unfavorable market. At the same time millions who could, and should, pay some federal tax are either not taxed or are by no means taxed according to ability to pay.

The House wrote a hodgepodge tax bill and sent it to the Senate with the understanding that no tax bill would be passed before the election. But the pressure of war financing and the demands of the people may force action prior to the election yet the chance seems slim now that congressmen have abandoned their jobs and scamped back home to look after their political fences.

Anyway, it should be understood that the people are willing to carry any tax burden that victory in the war demands, provided that it is fairly and evenly distributed.

A Better Quota System Needed

THE LAYOFF of hundreds of workers at the Wright aircraft engine factory at Paterson, N. J., because of a shortage of raw material puts the finger on a vital fault in the government's control of war industry production.

The layoff caused the shutdown of the foundry operated by the Wright company in connection with its aircraft engine plant. It was the second time within a few days that workers were laid off because of lack of material. The material has been on order for nearly a year.

It is apparent that something is radically wrong when such an important cog in the nation's war effort as an aircraft engine plant has to curtail its output because of lack of material. Planes are vital to victory and engines are vital to planes. Admittedly engines have been the bottleneck preventing a larger output of planes. Therefore nothing should be allowed to interfere with the maximum production of aircraft engines.

Undoubtedly the Wright company has all the gilt-edged priorities it wants. But priorities on paper do not mean a thing when the raw material is not forthcoming. There are reports that some plants have been getting more steel and other materials than they can use while others are crying for it in vain.

The problem seems to be in the lap of the WPB. The Army and Navy Munitions Board has passed on to the WPB major responsibility for maximum war production and the WPB is now understood to be trying to work out a quota system by which a steady supply of materials would be made available.

With the accent so heavily on industrial production, the situation calls for an effective remedy with the utmost speed. The strangest part is that the remedy has already been so long on the way.

An American soldier, we read, wooed, won and wed an Australian miss in five hours. And now, it seems, we have the blitz romance!

When Harold Ickes admits that he's optimistic about something, the rest of the country might as well throw off all restraints.

Jap generals, we read, are paid a salary of only $50 a week. Before this war is over we'll prove they're not worth that much.

He may not have too much for the manufacture of war materials but there is plenty of iron in Uncle Sam's resolution.

"Italy launches a new battleship!"—headline. The natural reaction to that is: "What for?"

Why Were You Bitter?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Have you been bitter? Have you sneered at life and said there was no truth, no courage, no fairness in this world?

And did you learn at last what was wrong with YOU? Did you discover that you had been bitter only because you had been hurt?

Almost always that's the trouble. We are bitter because we have been hurt. We are hurt and we cry for revenge. We abuse life, we abuse people, we nurse our wrath and we walk the streets like sandwich men advertising that we are martyrs to injustice. We do not carry a painted sign, but we do advertise our bitterness through the sadness in the eyes and the droop of the mouth.

And why were we hurt? Because we were ignorant. Because we had built a wall between ourselves and others. Because we had the wrong idea about life and human beings.

We expected too much. We asked too much. We weren't perfect but expected others to be. We wanted life to take care of us and didn't realize that we must take care of ourselves. We called ourselves idealists and didn't know we were too foolish children.

Then something happened. There was sickness, poverty, death and loneliness. We were terrified, humiliated, disappointed and angry. So we said: "At last we know the truth. Now we know what human beings are like. Nobody cares what happens to us. This is a world of Dog-Eat-Dog and every man for himself." We called ourselves "disillusioned" and the childish faith became distrust.

That's how it happened—because we were blind and foolish and didn't know ourselves any better than we knew other people. We were selfish and thought we were trustful. We were weak and thought we were Noble Belongs. And when life put us to the test, we turned cowards and were bitter.

I've done that so often that I know this is true. . . . And if you will examine your own heart you may learn that it is true for you, too.

Bankruptcy Fear Is Held Unfounded As to the Nation

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Assertions that we're heading into national bankruptcy are under attack in numerous "letters to the editor" from newspaper readers throughout the country, on the ground that they are deliberately intended by anti-war folk, who write them, to undermine our morale.

Whether or not these communications are disloyal, it is not hard to demonstrate that they are inaccurate. An individual is bankrupt if he owes to other individuals more than he can pay. He can be "flat broke" on his own personal account, but he is not bankrupt unless he has outstanding claims against him in others' hands.

Like an Individual

Speaking of us collectively, as Americans, we can spend all we have and find ourselves nationally "strapped," but it won't be bankruptcy.

A nation is just like an individual. If it spends itself down to, and including, its last cent, it is "busted" but it is not actually "in the hole" (a bankrupt country) unless it has borrowed, too.

"Ah," wail the pessimists, "but look where we're borrowing now!" Sure enough, but we are borrowing from ourselves. We are nationally in the position of a guy who borrows his own dough from his right-hand pants pocket to supply his left-hand pocket with cash to spend from that side.

The individual referred to isn't bankrupt on the strength of what he owes to himself, if he hasn't got a lot of creditors hollering for more.

United States the Creditor

And Uncle Sam is doing all the lending (lease-lending) this time. That he will ever be able to effect any collections isn't a particularly good bet and I don't imagine he will try very hard. I don't believe he will try very hard. I don't believe it will be at all well worth his while to do so—if it isn't sedition to make such a remark in the present emergency. He won't be the bankrupt of the international aggregation, anyway.

The chaps who poo-poo the idea of a darned unpleasant post-war period seem to me, however, to be overlooking one important consideration.

Let's get back to the individual again. The duck works like sixty for a terms of years, producing and saving up life's necessities and comforts to last him on into his old age. Then he's attacked by some hoodlum who compels him to blow his entire war in defense of what's left for himself and his progeny.

No Sense in Charge

Isn't it going to make him ache while he survives—and his descendants, too, for awhile afterward?

He naturally wants to exterminate the hoodlum. There's a certain amount of satisfaction in that. Nevertheless, there's no sense in telling him that he's a sedition-monger for recognizing it.

This war has been characterized by an unprecedented number of anticipatory measures to cushion the inevitable post-war letdown. How effectively they will do it remains to be seen. They never have been tried before—until after the crash.

It isn't logical, though, to assume that ANYTHING can cushion a fall from the moon without an appreciable plunk.

Tried by NRA

The NRA tried it the last time, but that was a post-mortem outfit. Leon Henderson is engaged with preventive measures.

They haven't had their test, either. If Leon succeeds in getting away with his stunt, he will be accorded the medal for all history.

It won't be altogether a good thing, at that.

It will imply that countries can fight wars and survive them economically.

Perhaps it would be better to have the wars accepted as all-around suicide.

If Leon proves that they ARE suicide, maybe that'll be the happiest solution.

The actual fighting isn't so vital. It's what follows.

Nobody knows yet what Leon will try to demonstrate. He's got a coming opportunity to register on into history.

Is war profitable? Or isn't it?

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Plenty of clean drinking water at all times for the laying flock and the growing chickens is very important, says Dr. Robert E. Phillips of the University of Maryland Poultry Department.

To sun-dry corn, spread small lots on clean boards, heavy paper, canvas, cheesecloth, or sacks held in place by laths. Wire trays or screens, or slat trays covered with thin cloth, are even better because they let air circulate under the corn as well as over it.

Years ago, someone got the idea that grapes would color better if the leaves around the clusters of fruit were torn off, according to A. F. Vierheller, specialist in horticulture for the University of Maryland Extension Service. This, he declares, is just what should not be done.

For cultivated orchards, the more extensive use of such legumes as soybeans, cowpeas, or Korean lespedeza is recommended, especially for young orchards or for bearing orchards on soils that are not too shallow to support a good cover as well as satisfactory tree and fruit growth.

The 1942 meeting and exposition of the Northeastern Poultry Producers' Council, to be held in the Hotel New Yorker, New York city, August 26, 27, and 28, will be streamlined to meet war conditions. The meetings will deal with problems concerning production of eggs and poultry meat under war-time restrictions.

Lid-Lifting Problem

From the Christian Science Monitor

What should men who aim to be gentlemen as well do about hats on elevators? Take them off? That is still done in some places. Leave them on? Apparently that is coming to be the more general custom. Consider a case.

Here are two business men, acquaintances, waiting to board the elevator from the eighth floor of an office building. They speak. One wears his hat, the other carries his in his hand. The light flashes red, the doors open, and in they step. What happens?

The gentleman, for such he is, who wore his hat in the corridor removes it on entering the lift. The other gentleman—put his on, too—sympathetically puts his on, at the same instant. Both seek not to offend. Consequently, he who has taken his hat off hastily claps it back on, evidently considering high-battedness the worst of all poor manners. And he who has kept his on out of a wish to conform remains covered, concluding that the little drama has gone far enough.

Now there is no doubt but Mrs. Post and others know exactly what should be done. Lift the lid when taking the lift—that is the rule. But there's many an elevator so crowded these days that the only place a man finds for his hat is on his head.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11—Senate committee members prevented the House from passing a bill to fix the corporate tax rate by the House at forty-five percent of net income and ninety percent of excess profits, so offhand anyone would figure that business would be able to earn at least half of what it earned in pre-war days. Apparently that was what the House thought.

But when the Senate committee started prowling back into the complicated new administrative restrictions on interest payments, altered allowances for debt retirement, and provisions forcing business to abandon its fiscal year system, it discovered the bill would throw a lot of businesses into the unprofitable class.

Cases Are Cited

For instance, the Glidden Company, of Cleveland, O., (making cuprous oxide for shipbuilding and paints) showed that its profit margin had been cut so much by taxes and price ceilings that a change in its fiscal year bookkeeping system to the calendar year, would leave it $498,674 short of being able to meet its taxes this year.

In other words, it has planned for its taxes on a fiscal year basis, and thus has made insufficient provisions to pay its taxes under the House scheme.

The Rome Cable Corporation, of Rome, N. Y., a rapidly growing new business making cables vital to war communications, submitted figures indicating it would not be able to make expansions demanded by the army and pay taxes, although it was grossing more money than ever before. Its sales for the second quarter this year were at the same level as last year, but operating costs had increased twenty percent and sales prices have been pegged by the Henderson price ceiling.

These economic factors without taxes, would force Rome's earnings rate down from 3.9 percent to 2.1 percent (about half), and prevent it from paying its dividend of fifteen cents a share and expansion required for wartime operation.

Put into the Red

The Utah Power and Light Company presented its books, estimating its taxable income for this year at $3,198,872, its normal tax at $1,000,269, its excess profits tax at $963,269.

On one point both sides were agreed. The immediate question of whether the White House candidate (Mead) or Farley's (Bennett) should run for governor because secondary in the scramble to control the New York organization.

In simpler words, if Farley wins, Mr. Roosevelt will not have the backing of his home state for himself or a designee in 1944.

Example Woefully Inadequate

Every now and then someone blasts out against industry for not converting soon enough from peace to wartime, but the example set by the federal government is still woefully inadequate. The Tydings report says that under our system of government, the president is responsible for executive management but that he naturally has to delegate it to others. But, it is added, while the Budget bureau under a law of 1921 is responsible for making studies of government agencies and assignments and the grouping and the regrouping of activities, the bureau has failed to do its job.

Then, it is asked, whether this is due to inadequate or inexperienced or unqualified staff and comes to the conclusion that the bureau "enjoys a most highly qualified and widely experienced staff and that it is inconceivable that anyone could attack the bureau on these grounds."

Fiscal Policies Impaired

The committee declares that the real fault lies in the fact that "the ideologies and the adherence to certain theories in regard to governmental fiscal policies impair, and, to an extent nullify, what might otherwise be obtained by the technical expertise it undoubtedly possesses."

"Certain officials of the Bureau of the Budget and the National Resources Planning Board have been and are yet carrying on very discreet, but nonetheless pernicious, propaganda to the effect that there must continue after the war even greater mounting deficit-spending on the part of the federal government than was followed during the decade preceding the defense and war expenditures. The merits of their theories will not here be discussed but they must be taken into consideration when endeavoring to analyze and reach a solution for the ever-growing bureaucracy in the civil branch of the federal government."

The committee declares "there has been little effort to curtail the activities of non-war agencies, in fact their personnel has shown a steady increase notwithstanding the national defense preparations and the subsequent war effort."

Poor Record

The figures given for employees in non-defense agencies as of December, 1939, are 763,306 whereas in April, 1942, there were 858,278 representing an all-time peak and a ten per cent increase over December, 1939.

It is difficult to see how the country is going to be impressed with the need for conserving manpower and even for urging women to take men's jobs when the government itself shows such a poor record in putting its own house in order. The president cannot, of course give time to the actual execution of the task of transition but a firm word from him to the Budget bureau and an insistence by him that the unnecessary personnel be transferred to war work would go a long ways toward putting the United States government on the war basis so far as its civilian agencies are concerned.

Government Not Yet in the War, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—When Elmer Davis says America is only "one deep in war," he describes primarily our war activities but if the eyes of scrutiny were to be turned on the government itself, it would be found that it is hardly in the war at all.

This is by no other way of saying that the vast bureaus of the government which could by this time have been converted to war activities are still pursuing their customary ways while the much needed personnel for the war agencies now being sought outside of Washington can be found right here in the national capital.

Senator Millard Tydings, Democrat, head of a subcommittee of the committee of appropriations, has issued a report which is far more revealing as to why America is only "one deep" in war than anything else for it is a document that tells of the nonchalant spirit of the Budget bureau and the indifference of heads of government agencies today converting their bureaus to wartime uses.

The American people are being asked to apply their savings to war bonds and they have a right to ask that the government itself keep faith with them by cutting out non-essential spending and by making use of its existing personnel before wasting more funds on duplicating personnel.

any time up to freezing weather. Many gardeners plant rye between rows of corn or other vegetables during August and September. Rye can be sown fairly thickly and then lightly raked into the soil without causing any injury to the corn. Of course it should not be planted until after the corn has received its last hoeing.

Any of the cover-crops should be turned under while they are still green and succulent, to be of the most value. Rye can be turned under late in the fall or it may be left over winter and turned under early in the spring. In either case it should be done before it has grown a foot tall.

Mark's Wife

by MARIE BLIZARD

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, when her husband, MARK, a newspaperman-turned-author, dies in South Winthrop, the small town in which they had taken up residence. Because they and the townspeople had practically nothing in common, there has been only one person sympathetic with her. He is DR. TONY BRADSHAW, young physician of the town.

YESTERDAY: Miss Addie relates to Tony how Tony Kilran, operator of the big mill in town, came into his wealth.

CHAPTER FIVE

THE STACCATO echo of a back-firing truck awakened Barbara Wister with an abruptness so startling that it was as if she had no mind, no memory, no power to think. She was awake, that was all. Her body, rested by the sedative, was deliciously light under the covers, the pillow incredibly soft beneath her head. Before her mind cleared into consciousness, something told her she wanted to prolong that moment forever, and fast upon the heels of that awareness was the knowledge of the struggle that lay ahead of her.

Then, because she was not quite awake, something else brought her bold upright and blindly reaching for her robe. Mark, Mark. She must go to Mark.

Then she remembered that Mark was dead. Mark's funeral was over. One job was done. Another was beginning. Today.

She was sharply awake then, already feeling the urgent hand of Time at her shoulder, hearing its voice telling her that she had no months, nor weeks, nor yet days to plan, to hope for help. What was to be done was to be done solely by her.

For perhaps the only time in her life, Barbara Wister turned away from the thing she knew she had to do. A feeling of helplessness and loneliness and longing for the thing she'd never had, someone close and loving, welled up in her. Slow tears trickled down her cheeks. These were different tears from those she had wept for Mark. These were for the mother she couldn't remember, for herself because there was no one anywhere that she knew to whom she could go, as Sonny could go to her, and know because someone loved her that all would be well. It was aching, desolate loneliness.

There were the men friends of their old life in New York, Mark's associates. There wasn't another woman, no friend from the past or present to whom she could say, "What am I to do? How can I make a living for Sonny and myself?"

Her eyes drifted to the table beside her bed and she saw the soup bowl that Tony Bradshaw had brought her and, as if the sight had been strengthening, she sniffled, dried her tears and got up to dress.

When she was dressed she saw that it wasn't quite seven, as yet too early to waken her sleeping child. She went in and looked at him, sitting beside his small white bed, seeing him through the years that were coming.

His babyhood was nearly over. School was ahead of him. All sorts of things darted into her mind, funny little pictures. Sonny wanting a baseball glove, Sonny losing his first teeth, needing to have the new ones straightened. Sonny faced with the inevitable illnesses of childhood, the natural wants of adolescence, clothes, pocket money. High school, preparation for a good life.

She knelt beside his bed and, burying her face in her hands, she prayed that strength and light would come to her, and all the time she thought, "What becomes of a woman and her child when she cannot provide for him?"

Tucking the blanket under his chin, she thought, "If I were alone, I could go back to the city and find work, but I can't take him away from here. I KNOW its best for him to be here."

She saw herself in the mirror in the door. She had put on the black

She prayed that strength and light would come to her.

dress she'd worn the night before, but now, refreshed by the first good sleep she'd had in many days, even the dreariness of mourning black could not dwarf her look of vitality.

"I could marry again," she said half aloud. "I could take care of Sonny that way."

Then she saw herself shudder in the mirror. A woman should not marry for any reason but love. She had married for loneliness and it had been a good enough marriage. "But not what it could have been," a small voice said.

Things that she had put away from her when she became Mark's wife pushed themselves into the foreground of her mind, the things she had dreamed of in her romantic and brief girlhood, things that a woman who was still young knew might yet be for her.

But Barbara Wister knew they were not to be for her unless she went out into the world and looked for them. Perhaps she might have, had it not been for Sonny. But Sonny's life and future were her whole world now and she wanted no lonely cities, no lack of ties for him. Fiercely she wanted him to stay right where he was and grow up to be a man like Tony Bradshaw.

She found herself saying it, "I want him to be like Tony."

When she went into the living room, it was as if his presence was still there, giving her courage, strength, and she went to the desk and looked at the column of figures she had added up the night before.

Grocer's bill, the appalling total of items from the drug store, the money she owed the garage. Not big bills to a woman who knew that she would have a little money every week.

Barbara thumbed them hurriedly. There was one from the Bon Ton store for the chintz she'd bought to curtain the front bedroom. She wouldn't need that now.

The one thing she needed—and there it was again—was work. Work for women in South Winthrop was scarce. Something in an office, something in a store was all she could hope for, unless she could find some means of making work for herself.

She couldn't sew. She couldn't do any of the wonderful things self-reliant women were supposed to be able to do. But she could look in the morning newspaper which was on her porch. She didn't ever remember seeing advertisements headed "Help Wanted, Female," but, she hoped, bending to pick up the paper, that was because she hadn't needed to look for them before.

She turned the pages with nervous haste and ran her eyes down the single column. There was nothing to be hoped for there. No female help was needed in South Winthrop. There were a few items headed "Business Opportunities," and "Radio Repair," and "Houses for Sale." Then she saw one small item under the heading, "Rooms." It seemed to her then that a feeble ray of sunshine broke from the overcast sky of her mind.

That big, unused front room! She could rent that for something. It wouldn't be much. But she had nothing. It would be a beginning.

When the baker's cart stopped before her door she bought some little sugared cakes that Sonny liked, and she did it the way a woman buys an extravagant hat because she feels the future will be brighter.

Mr. Stannard wrapped the cakes, putting in an extra cookie or two, and said, "The Kilran ladies came home last night."

Barbara counted out her coins. "That's nice," she said. "Where do they live?"

Mr. Stannard's mouth dropped to display his lower bridge. "You bin around here this long, Mrs. Wister, and you don't know the mansion?" "Oh, that," Barbara said. "The big house on the hill with the copper roof? Sometimes I can see it catching the sunlight."

She stood on the porch looking down east and then up to the west. She said, "It makes a perfect triangle. The village makes one point, the mansion another, and my house the peak."

"A triangle, eh?" Mr. Stannard repeated, giving her an odd look. "Guess I ain't got much time to think o' them funny ideas myself."

"It doesn't mean anything," Barbara said, pocketing her change. It was such a small thing, not worth mentioning. The design had just popped into her mind one night—the towering mansion on her left, Tony's house in the village on her right, and herself, or her house, in the middle.

Mr. Stannard climbed back into his cart and went off muttering, "A triangle? Now, who'd of thought of that? Must be like the missus says. She must be kinda queer."

It was a long time before the symbol of that triangle was to mean anything to her.

The Rev. I. W. Emmons Weds DeMarius Herpich

Ceremony Is Performed in First Baptist Church by the Rev. E. W. Saylor

White lilies and various other white flowers were used with palms, ferns and candelabras of white tapers on the altar and on the windowsills of the First Baptist church, Bedford street, for the wedding ceremony last evening, when Miss DeMarius Herpich, daughter of Mrs. DeMarius Herpich, 717 Bedford street, and the late John C. Herpich, became the bride of the Rev. I. W. Emmons, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Emmons, Hamilton, N. J.

The ceremony was solemnized at 8 o'clock with the Rev. Edwin W. Saylor, pastor, officiating. Miss Marguerite Stillwagon, Silver Spring was maid of honor; Miss Elizabeth Moreland, this city, and Miss Noma Jensen, Cleveland, O. were the bridesmaids and Carole Reith, city, cousin of the bride, was the junior bridesmaid.

Brother Is Best Man
George Emmons, Vineland, N. J., served as his brother's best man and John Clay Metzger, cousin of the bride, and Robert Moreland, both of this city, were the ushers. Mrs. Carl Reith, aunt of the bride, sang, "I Love You," and "Bibb's," "Poems," with Mrs. Catherine Carson at the organ, who also played the traditional wedding marches and preceding the benediction, "He Leadeth Me."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Carl Reith, was attired in a gown of mousseline de soie and chantilly lace, fashioned on the long torso lines, with a sweetheart neckline, long lily point sleeves and a train of chantilly lace sweeping from the full skirt. Her finger tip length veil of illusion was held by a coronet of lace and pearls. She carried a white Bible, a gift from the bridegroom, from which cascaded a shower of white delphinium.

The maid of honor wore a sea foam green nee-ton gown trimmed with lace inserts. It was made on princess lines, with short sleeves and low neckline. She carried a bouquet of tulle roses and wore an arrangement of the same flowers in her hair.

Wear Nemon Gowns
The bridesmaids wore nemon gowns made on princess lines with bishop sleeves and carried bouquets of blue delphinium with the matching flowers in their hair. Miss Moreland's gown was of dawn pink and Miss Jensen's was of horizon blue.

The junior bridesmaid wore a printed mousseline de soie with pastel flowers on a white background, over a pink slip, made on the Kate Greenaway style with the large sash of the same material as the dress. She carried an old fashioned bouquet and had matching flowers in her hair.

Both mothers were attired in light blue chiffon with white accessories and wore corsages of pink rosesbuds.
The bride, a granddaughter of the late Conrad J. Herpich, who served several terms as Delegate in the Maryland Legislature, is a graduate of Allegheny high school, Temple university, Philadelphia, where she received her B. S. degree, and the Baptist Institute for Christian Workers, Philadelphia. She has been employed as social service secretary for the First Baptist church, Philadelphia. She assisted this summer with the Daily Vacation Bible school of the First Baptist church, city, and for the two preceding years was director of the school.

Received Degree at Temple
The bridegroom is a graduate of Glassboro high school, Glassboro, N. J., Temple university, Philadelphia, where he received his B. S., the Temple Theological school, receiving his S. T. B. degree. He is the minister at the St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Laurel Springs, N. J. He will work on his master degree this winter at Princeton University Theological seminary, Princeton, N. J.

Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held for members of the family and other guests in the church social room, which was decorated in green and summer flowers and white tapers. A large three-tier wedding cake of white with pink and green decorations formed the centerpiece for the refreshment table. Mrs. Edwin W. Saylor served the cake; Miss Maribelle MacKenzie, Philadelphia, presided at the punch bowl, assisted by Mrs. Robert Moreland. Others assisting in serving were Mrs. Lorenz Davis, Mrs. Harry Trill, Miss Mary Lee Bosley and Miss Mary Moxley registrar.

Guests Attending
Among the out-of-town guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Emmons, Hamilton, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. George Emmons, Vineland, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Isaac King, Hagerstown; Mrs. Edward Beigh-tol, Hagerstown; Mrs. William Pankey, St. Louis, Mo., and the Rev. Barton Van Vleet, Blossburg, Pa.
Mrs. Emmons wore a suit of spring blue crepe with white accessories for the wedding trip to Cape May, N. J., and other shore resorts.

Without taking her foot off the gas, Aunt Ada reached over, let fly a right, and the mouse became a hitch-hiker again.

Curtin's brief statement yesterday on the Solomon fighting was the first word from an official Australian source.

He interpreted Admiral Ernest J. King's preliminary announcement in Washington yesterday of losses on both sides in the developing land, sea and air fight as indicating that Allied gains so far had greatly outweighed losses.

It was disclosed, meanwhile, that American troops exclusively were involved in the landings and the fight ashore for control of the vital area around Tulagi harbor, best fleet massing anchorage in the archipelago.

Australian naval units took part alongside the United States naval force directed by Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, supreme commander of Allied naval forces in the South Pacific area.

Australian planes, too, were taking part along with American Air Forces of General MacArthur's command in a deadly battering of the whole vast system of Japanese concentration points stretching southeastward into the mountainous Solomons.

A communiqué today said Rabaul, big Japanese base in New Britain at the flank of the Solomon operations, had been pounded for the third consecutive day. The war bulletin also reported attacks on Japanese shipping south of Timor, more than 2,000 miles to the west, in which a heavy destroyer and two Japanese merchantmen were knocked out.

Fighting in Jungle
In the jungle-cloaked interior of New Guinea, too, Allied forces were said to have lashed out with attacks in the Kokoda sector yesterday, strongly engaging Japanese advance forces and driving them back.

Fresh supplies to keep the offensive moving were poured into Australia. An Australian spokesman said the new shipments were of "highest possible value" and would revolutionize offensive operations in the north.

There has been no official statement here of Allied losses or of losses inflicted upon the enemy in the Solomon battle since Admiral King's Washington announcement that an Allied cruiser was sunk and two cruisers, two destroyers and a transport were damaged. He spoke of "a large number" of enemy planes destroyed and Japanese surface units put out of action.

Roosevelt Seeks

When the statement came out. After he was informed it was two weeks ago, he said that a copy be obtained for him and a reporter promised to supply it.

To a question whether there was anything he could say on a possible shut down of 1,000 war plants because of material shortages, Mr. Roosevelt replied he would have to ask the Army, Navy, and War Production Chairman Donald M. Nelson before he could authenticate the report.

stroyed twenty-one Nazi tanks and killed 800 Germans.

Far to the north on the Upper Don the Russians said their troops still held the Western bank of that river in the Voronezh area after beating off several German attacks.

The Russians fighting southeast of Armavir were favored somewhat by rougher terrain.

The Laba river and many swirling mountain streams that pour down from the high Caucasus offer natural obstacles to the German armies which are trying to advance from the Armavir region. Caucasian streams move with the speed of torrents, making use of pontoons and rubber boats extremely hazardous.

With strong German forces also pounding toward the Black sea naval bases of Novorossiysk and Tuapse, approximately sixty miles distant from Krasnodar and Maikop, respectively, a red fleet dispatch said that units of the Black sea naval forces were supporting Malines ashore in one sector.

Marines Check Germans

The Marines were said to have turned back the Germans in at least three places, while army units fighting in the Krasnodar area fired or wrecked sixteen German tanks and in one sector repulsed five attacks.

Many German Alpine units were coming up from reserve. Their presence suggested strongly that the Germans intend to drive into the main Caucasian mountain range, besides pushing down the Trans-Caucasian railway to Grozny and the Caspian.

(In London a British military source expressed belief that the Germans would try to drive through the Caucasus range to Tiflis with special tank and mountain troops while other forces headed across the foothills toward the Caspian.

(Radio Vichy said the Germans were within forty or fifty miles of the naval base of Novorossiysk and within thirty miles of the naval station at Tuapse.)

Some of the bloodiest fighting of the whole Southern campaign was taking place on the two fronts before Stalingrad.

The sector south of Kletskaia, seventy-five miles northwest of Stalingrad, was a land aflame, with cherry orchards and the steppe houses of Cossacks crushed and burning, and the sky black with German planes.

Northeast of Kotelkikovsk, which is ninety-five miles southwest of Stalingrad, the Red army forward wall was reported holding firm against heavy tank and infantry attacks, while rearward groups mopped up small groups of German paratroopers.

War Spending

$39,559,000,000. Despite the magnitude of actual expenditures, they fell far short of commitments for equipment, supplies and services. During the two years ending last July 1, contracts and other commitments totaled $129,998,000,000. The total of appropriations approved or pending totaled about $223,000,000,000 at the end of July.

tacked shore installations and ships in the same vicinity.

"4. An August 3, Japanese aircraft attacked U. S. Destroyer Kane off Alaska Island, about 305 miles east of Kiska. No damage was inflicted. Army bombers again attacked the Kiska harbor area, with unobserved results.

"5. An August 4 Army pursuit planes shot down two Kawanishi 97 seaplane bombers.

"6. An August 8 a task force of the Pacific fleet, protected by Navy patrol planes, heavily bombarded a group of enemy ships, camp facilities and shore installations at Kiska. The attack was a complete surprise. The enemy, mistaking the first salvoes of shells for bombs, opened fire with anti-aircraft batteries on imagined planes. The intensive bombardment, started fires and inflicted severe damage to the camp area. The only enemy resistance encountered was from aircraft. Our loss was one observation plane.

"7. On August 9 naval patrol planes followed up the bombardment by an attack on two cargo ships in Kiska harbor. Two bomb hits were scored on each of the two ships, resulting in severe damage. On this flight, observers reported sighting a sunken cargo ship, which is believed to have been sunk near the beach during the previous day's bombardment by surface forces.

"8. While the action in the Tulagi area of the Solomon Islands continues, nothing further can be reported at this moment."

Allied Offensive Underway

The Japanese ship losses reported in the communiqué raised the total of Nipponese ships announced sunk or damaged in the Aleutians to 21—9 sunk, 1 believed sunk and 11 damaged.

The August 8 task force attack on the main Japanese base at Kiska Island had previously been announced by the Navy on that day with a brief statement that "U. S. naval forces bombarded enemy ships and shore installations at Kiska." This action was carried out simultaneously with the assault in force on Japanese garrisons in the Solomon Islands which marks the beginning of Allied efforts to drive the Japs from the strategic Tulagi area.

Boudreau Signs New Contract

Indians' Manager Agrees To Pilot Club through 1945 Campaign

CLEVELAND, Aug. 11 (AP)—Lou Boudreau, the Cleveland Indians' 25-year-old manager-shortstop, has been signed to a new three-year contract extending through 1945, Club President Alva Bradley announced tonight.

The new document replaces Boudreau's present two-year contract which was to extend through the 1943 season. No mention was made of a raise for the youthful manager, but it was believed to call for more than the $25,000 annual salary Boudreau now is reported to get.

Bradley explained that Lou would finish the present campaign, his first in a managerial role, under the present contract and that the new one becomes effective next year.

It was only after considerable worry about Boudreau's comparative youth that Bradley finally decided to make his flashy shortstop the managerial successor to Roger Peckinpaugh, who was promoted to the top front office job. Lou has responded by keeping the Indians in a neck-and-neck race with Boston for second place.

Blenheim romped to a six-length victory in the Frostdurg purse, the sixth race of the afternoon. Hot Man, who was last going into the final turn, closed strong to finish second. The favored Yankee Lad was third.

El Jels won by a length over Nyleve with Sun Maker third in a photo finish with Campmeeting. Campmeeting set the early pace but tired while Mowlee's Lad made a strong bid but faded from the picture at the half-way mark.

El Jels paid $5.70, $3.70 and $3.20; Nyleve returned $3.60 and $3.00, and Sun Maker's payoff was $4.20. The time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:59.

Cumberland Day Today

interned is because they have been left in this country without a boat to return to."

Warden Price conceded "there's been plenty of bellyaching" among the Greek sailors but attributed the sailors' complaints to their distaste for being locked up in jail rather than in a detention center.

Some Refused Seamen's Jobs

He said he had heard no complaints from the men concerning food or living conditions.

"I've talked with these men myself," Price said, "and they have admitted the sanitation and the food is good."

"Many of them have secured jobs on merchant ships and already left the jail," Price added.

J. F. Delaney, Baltimore director of the immigration service, said the seamen were taken to the jail from Port Howard to make more room for other internees at the latter place.

The sailors were interned, Delaney said, for the duration of the war as they had refused to book as seamen on other sailing vessels and considered their part in the war as over.

civil disobedience demonstrators and the security forces, thirteen more persons were killed and thirty injured today in ten separate outbreaks here, with troops following up their repeated actions of yesterday in firing on crowds on one or two occasions.

This brought casualties in Bombay alone, since the first outbreaks Sunday upon the arrest of Mohandas K. Gandhi, to at least twenty-eight dead and more than 200 injured. There was no accurate count of casualties elsewhere in the teeming sub-continent.

At Patna, capital of Bihar province, five persons were killed and nineteen injured when police fired on demonstrators massed near the government secretariat this afternoon.

Lumley followed up his broadcast warning tonight with a communique announcing invocation of an emergency whipping act for Bombay province and the drafting of several hundred additional police into the city from other districts.

The provincial police force numbered 17,000 in normal times.

Formations of police were almost constantly on the march through the disturbed sections of Bombay. British Tommies with machineguns were a common sight.

While rioting spread from Bombay in the West to Calcutta in the east, accompanied by work stoppages, the authorities were alert for the spark that might set off communal clashes between the Hindu followers of Gandhi and members of the Moslem minority. Hindu students have stoned Moslem shops here.

Disobedience Continues

The civil disobedience campaign, proceeding despite the detention of Gandhi and other leaders, was encouraged by a promise circulated among sub-leaders that two months would bring victory in their "final struggle" to force Britain out of India.

Congress party followers of Gandhi sought to expand the present shutting down of stores to a complete shutdown of business, and, despite Gandhi's advance repudiation of violence in behalf of the party cause, this was marked by rowdism.

Work was interrupted at the General Motors assembly plant in Bombay, but the Ford assembly plant continued in operation.

Police opened fire twice today on mobs that set fire to a wooden police guard post and attempted to halt traffic. Other demonstrators contented themselves with setting bonfires which they kept going with hats, neckties and other articles of European clothing taken from passersby.

other Allied forces, the Marines have opened the door to an Allied offensive in the South Pacific.

With the explanation that "now it can be told" the navy said that reports of marine corps headquarters heretofore held secret "for obvious security reasons" indicated that "intensive jungle warfare training" was being combined with marine amphibious tactics.

"Details of heavy caliber weapons are clouded in secrecy," the account continued, "but the familiarity of Marines with small caliber weapons is a fact established through decades of close contact fighting."

"On combat ranges hewn out of cocoanut and banana groves the leathernecks sharpened their shooting for the invasion operations they have now practiced on the Japs."

"The Marines fired their rifles, their tommyguns, Reising guns and Browning automatic rifles. They brushed up their training with 30 and 50 caliber light and heavy machine guns."

Learn New Twists

"Marines put new twists and tracks to the business of killing Japs. Quick shooting at surprise targets, knocking sniper dummies out of trees and assaulting an objective under a barrage of live ammunition were 1942 Marine invasion rehearsals."

"During recent combat exercises Lieutenants led their platoons through and under barbed wire against an objective while expert riflemen fired live bullets just above the heads of the crawling Marines."

"In preparation for such strenuous work, marines board transports on the long voyage over spent hours in hand-to-hand combat work. Knives, small arms, and jiu jitsu were important in shipboard training in preparation for eventual jungle warfare."

German Pilot Ace Is Shot Down in Battle with RAF

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP)—The Air Ministry News Service said tonight Major Rudolf Pfalz, ace German fighter pilot, was killed in combat with RAF fighters over France on July 31, the day after the Germans announced he had scored his fifty-first success.

Two Americans, flight Lieutenant S. R. Eider of San Jose, Cal., and Pilot Officer Barry Mahon of Santa Barbara, Cal., each brought down two Messerschmitts during the RAF sweep in which the Nazi ace was killed.

Pfalz was one of eleven shot down in fierce dogfights between more than 100 RAF and German fighters over the Somme area. The RAF lost eight Spitfires. Which pilot got Pfalz has not been determined, the news service said.

sell Bull, a prominent citizen of Kiptopeke, Va., who serves as a senior air raid warden.

It quoted Mrs. Bull as having said that army men visited the farm in March and called attention to the sacks, but left satisfied after the figuration had been re-arranged. Mrs. Bull was further quoted as saying that they had been drying fertilizer bags that way for years, throwing them from a moving truck, and that the figure nine resulted quite by accident.

Before the accuracy of the Mitchell Field release was called into question, the Office for Civilian Defense issued a statement yesterday praising the army for its alertness. It said "careful preparations for an attack on Eastern air bases and aircraft plants have been discovered and wiped out by an alert air force."

OCDF officials said this statement had been approved by the army. Today they said "we don't know what the army will decide about the pictures."

Aside from the incidents involved in the army release, the OCF statement of yesterday said that the Civilian Air Patrol had been responsible for the obliteration of many markers and some ground installations that night have aided enemy planes.

"Certainly there is nothing about this," OCF commented.

The OCF stuck by its warning to air raid wardens to be on the alert.

Effects of Weather Changes on Life

And Health Discussed by Physician

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The physicians of ancient days of Greece and Egypt and Rome paid great attention to the effect of weather and climate on human life and health. Hippocrates, the father of medicine, left a work on "Air, Waters and Places."

All this lore was neglected by the modern intellectually proud with his knowledge of bacteriology and body chemistry. It bids fair to have a renaissance with the patient observations and writings of two outstanding American scholars, Dr. William F. Petersen, of the University of Illinois College of Medicine, and Dr. Clarence A. Mills, professor of experimental medicine at the University of Cincinnati.

Of Interest in America

North America should be particularly interested in weather. Except for the great Asiatic land mass, America has more weather than any place else on earth. Not only is the annual variation in temperature over most of its surface between 20 degrees below zero on some winter days to 110 or more degrees above zero during some summer days, but the number of storms and storm tracks brought about at the interfaces of polar air masses and tropical air masses make sudden change in temperature, humidity and barometric pressure frequent experiences.

Weather changes create so many effects on human bodily status that they are hard to classify. Hot weather reduces blood pressure and cold spells raise it. Dr. Petersen, in a recent article, tells an interesting story of a young woman with a very changeable or labile vasomotor system who regularly had fainting attacks in the wake of cold storms.

The fainting did not occur with the cold period, but afterwards when the warm or hot reaction came on; then her blood pressure became so low that any unusual exertion would bring on a fainting spell. In an equable climate she would have become comfortable, but even in her normal environment the administration of epinephrine, which raised blood pressure, controlled the attacks.

The formula for the general body reaction to sudden cold is "A. R. S." (anoxia, reduction, sugar increase). Cold closes the superficial blood vessels, raising blood pressure and it rearranges the endocrine secretions, causing a feeling of stimulation and actually affecting sugar metabolism.

Reaction to Heat

The reaction to heat is "C.O.V." (catabolism, oxidation, vasodilatation). The superficial blood vessels dilate, the blood increases in acidity, the basal metabolism is increased, the potassium-calcium ratio is diminished, dehydration occurs with a consequent feeling of let-downness and fatigue.

These are the temporary reactions to sharp changes. After a hot or cold spell is established, the body adjusts itself and discomfort disappears.

Questions and Answers

E. T.: Please let me know what causes one's toenails to fall off.

Answer: Probably ringworm infection.

J. P. G.:—Is there a cure or remedy that will relieve the spells of bronchial asthma? Is there a difference between bronchial asthma and chronic bronchitis?

Answer: Bronchial asthma is usually due to sensitivity (allergy) to plant poisons, sometimes to animals—especially rabbits and cats and horses—or to certain foods or house dust. If you can find out what you are sensitive to and eliminate it, your asthma will be improved. Sometimes the asthma is due to chronic infection from sinus disease. Chronic bronchitis often produces wheezing like asthmatic wheezing, but the two conditions are not essentially alike.

Chrysler Corp. Pays 75 Cents a Common Share in Stock

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (AP)—The Chrysler Corp., huge former auto manufacturer now turning out tanks and other war materials, today declared a dividend of seventy-five cents a common share compared with a dividend of $1 a share paid June 13 and $1.50 paid Sept. 13, 1941.

The dividend was made payable Sept. 14 to stockholders of record Aug. 22.
Earnings of the company for the six months ended June 30 were equal to $2.02 a common share, less than half the $4.82 a common share reported for the comparable 1941 period.

Prices Lift in General Fractions In Stock Market as Buyers Return

Tobaccos and Scattered
Specialties Stumble near
Close for Day

By BERNARD S. OHARA
NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (AP)—Buyers returned to the stock market today in sufficient numbers to lift prices generally fractions to around a point.

While tobacco and scattered specialties stumbled near the close, gains were well in the majority.

The Associated press average of sixty stocks was up 2 of a point at 36.4 largest upturn since July 20. Dealings expanded moderately, with transfers of 258,610 shares comparing with 209,941 Monday.

Stocks in front included Santa Fe, United States Steel, Chrysler, United States Rubber Common and Preferred, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Atlantic Coast Line, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, American Can, Dow Chemical, Johns-Manville, Warner Bros., Paramount and Electric Auto-Lite. Purity Bakers, Schenley and National Distillers went into new high ground for the year by minor amounts.

American Tobacco "B" lost a point and lesser recessions were shown for Reynolds Tobacco "B", Bethlehem Steel, Pullman, Lagget and Myers "B" and International Harvester.

Moving pictures issues were favored as Paramount reported a jump in earnings. There were a number of cut dividends.

Tilting forward in the curb were Glen Alden Coal, Insurance Company of North America, Sherwin Williams and American Cyanamid. American Gas slipped, along with Driver-Harris and panthepec.

Turnover here aggregated 46,830 shares versus 42,205 yesterday. Bond market prices stiffened in late dealings after idling through the first few hours.

The rails, utilities and foreign dollar issues in the Associated Press averages each gained 2 of a point while the industrials and low-yields held stationary. Transactions continued at a slow pace, however, aggregating $3,767,300, par value, against $3,734,000 the day before.

Chicago Grain Prices

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (AP)—A small amount of mill buying and short covering advanced wheat and most other grain futures today after the market had slumped in early trading in response to the government's forecast of huge crops.

English Girls Replace Welders

LONDON (P)—Girls of the ATS again have widened their scope. They are to be trained as acetylene welders to work on fire arms, tanks and army cars and trucks, the war office announced.

The first group of trainees has started its ten-week course in a technical college near London, at benches where hundreds of soldiers have learned the same trade from the same civilian instructors.

Girls who pass the subsequent trade test will be sent to army depots to release skilled men for field service.

Children Should Learn To Respect Public Property

Destructiveness of Few Youngsters Brings Hardships to Many

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

You and I may be vexed at seeing the sign, "Not rented to families with children." Yet if we had rented several houses to parents with young children, we might have a little more tolerance for the landlord. The destructiveness of a few ill-trained children has brought hardships to many.

Our concern here is not so much with the landlord as with the child. The character and citizenship of a child is seriously damaged by being careless and destructive of property, especially if they live in a rented house or apartment. When we are good citizens we try to be more careful with other people's property than our own. How much finer our neighborhood, state and nation might be if this idea were so ingrained in all children at home and school that those who become public servants would always prove worthy of public trust.

Must Learn Respect

In a sense we all are constantly using other people's things, and with permission. We do so when we go to church or the theater. We do so when we ride in a bus or train. We do so when we drive on the highway or eat a lunch with our children by the roadside or in the park. Our children do so when they go to school. The school property belongs to all the people of the community; so do the books and other free supplies at school; so also do the books borrowed from the public library.

Whether we live in a house we own, or rent one, we can and should teach our growing children to be careful not to mar or destroy any part of it. Likewise we need to teach them to be careful of the property of other people nearby; never to mar or deface trees, signs, street lights, or the sidewalk or pavement.

Right now, when our young men are offering their lives to defend our country, it would seem most fitting that their younger brothers and sisters at home, or little sons and daughters, should learn never to be destructive of any portion of what belongs to anybody in this nation. Every child needs to learn from his early years to respect and conserve every thing of value in our democracy and in doing so protect and respect the rights of others.

and good provider for the family but he seems to make no effort to win the affection and companionship of the children.

A. You probably have lectured him too much about the matter. Then, too, he might feel you have a corner on the affections of the children and that he does not count for much in the family relationship. Why not encourage the children to win more companionship with the father?

Beatrice Fairfax Tells Why Girls, Boys Leave Home

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The other day a young husky applied to a marine recruiting officer for enlistment in the Devil Dogs.

He was of heroic size and his muscular development would have interested Joe Louis. Questions and answers had not gone far when a distraught little woman, weighing less than a hundred pounds, dashed in and claimed the young giant as her son, not quite 16. The boy went home with his mother.

This escapade of the young male is matched frequently by girls of 14, 15 and 16 who come to Washington hoping to enjoy some of the war glamour they read about in the home newspapers. The Travelers' Aid Society keeps a vigilant eye on girls who doze on the benches at Union station, trying to make up their minds what to do next. These girls are returned almost invariably to the anxious parents.

Parents Often Strict

Allowing for the glamorous tales one reads about war—of overnight heroes made by daring deeds, and pictures of girls in becoming uniforms doing thrilling and daring things—one realizes the overwhelming urge of youngsters to get a finger in world affairs.

These boys and girls want to get going. Such grim necessities as money, a change of clothing, the prospects of a job do not occur to them when they leave comfortable homes to take chances with the unknown.

"Strict parents" is half the answer, and "deadly monotony" the other half. To this end I implore mothers and fathers to let their children have a little fun as part of their day's rationing. I get myriad letters from girls of 17, 18 and sometimes over 20, who tell me their parents will not let them have company—even girl company. They're not allowed to go anywhere, and this, believe it or not, when the girls are working and contributing to the family support.

A Desperate Letter

What's to be expected but that a youngster, a normal boy or girl will take chances with the unknown against the monotony and loneliness of life unrelieved by youthful contacts.

The other day I had a desperate letter from a woman whose 17-year-old daughter was regularly sent to bed at 9 o'clock in the evening. The girl waited until she heard the key in her mother and father's room turn in the lock. Then she'd sneak downstairs, meet a waiting boy friend who would take her to roadhouse dances. The mother thought her daughter should be sent to a reform school, but I suggested that

Rubber Situation Is Described at Rotary Meeting

Tires on Civilian Automobiles Are There in Trust, Swearington Says

FROSTBURG, Aug. 11—Declaring that the rubber on the wheels of civilian automobiles is there in trust, Henry S. Swearington, sales manager of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Cumberland, advised Frostburg Rotarians at their luncheon last evening, that it is the clear duty of every motorist, every loyal American, to make his share of this great rubber reserve and national asset last as long as possible.

Swearington, who was presented to the Rotary Club by William Jenkins, Sr., said that millions of Americans who are quite aware of the problems and hardships we must face in this war to save our country have one blind spot and that is rubber.

America's motorized millions in jalopies, trucks, delivery wagons and limousines are riding themselves off the road, he said, at the rate of three and one-half per cent per month. That, he warned, is the rate at which rubber is wearing off their tires and when that rubber is gone, there definitely will be none for millions of these car owners for a long time to come.

Swearington outlined many ways in which motorists could prolong the life of their tires and urged that motorists use their cars as little as possible.

"The mileage on your car is a valuable asset to you and your country. Do not waste it," he said.

OAKLAND, Aug. 11—Matches to determine the champion among women golfers of Oakland is now under way at the municipal course, according to the committee in charge of arrangements, composed of Dorothy Spencer, Mrs. Ira Bosley and Mrs. Ray Teets.

Participants have been paired off in the first, second and third flight matches and first matches must be played by Friday.

The Offutt championship cup was won last year by Mrs. Bosley. Pairings in the first flight are: Mrs. Olive Bosley vs. Mrs. Ruth Gonder, Mrs. Bea Gonder vs. Miss Evelyn Praley, Miss Dorothy Spencer vs. Mrs. Ellen Thompson. Mrs. Evelyn Jenkins drew a bye and will play the winner of the Bosley-Gonder match.

Second flight: Mrs. Earl Guard vs. Mrs. Ed Lander; and Mrs. John Stevenson vs. Mrs. William Naylor.

Third flight: Mrs. Mary Elliott vs. Mrs. Vernie Smouse; Mrs. Margaret Edard vs. Mrs. Ralph Pitts; Mrs. Andrew Gonder vs. Mrs. Minor Sprague; Mrs. Gayle Talbot vs. Mrs. F. D. Bittle; Mrs. Louise Currie vs. Mrs. R. R. Williams; Mrs. Karin Offutt vs. Mrs. H. K. Jones. Mrs. Mary Holden and Mrs. Ray Teets drew byes.

The drawing for men's championship has not been completed.

The municipal course has brought receipts of about $900 to date, less than last year. The drop, according to James Spencer, golf pro in charge, is because of the loss of forty-eight memberships, while only ten new ones were added. Current season's memberships amounted to $565 and green fees $313, with $145 still to be collected on memberships. Last season's receipts for the same period were $1,315.

Charleston Man Has Majority Of 317 Votes

Lead Includes Unofficial Returns from Counties Still Canvassing Ballots

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 11—The prolonged primary contest for the Republican United States senate nomination went into the second week today with Chapman Revercomb of Charleston holding a 317-vote lead and only three counties yet to complete their official tabulation.

It was indicated that no more than 500 votes might decide the issue of whether Revercomb or Raymond J. Funkhouser of Shepherdstown represents the party in the November election battle with Governor M. M. Neely, the Democratic nominee.

The 317 lead of Revercomb included unofficial returns from the three counties still canvassing the August 4 vote. On the basis of official counts from fifty-two counties and the three unofficial tabulations, the score stood:

Revercomb 48,073; Funkhouser 47,756.

However, official tabulation of the fifty-two counties gave Funkhouser a commanding lead of 4,596 votes. The fifty-two county total showed Funkhouser 39,874; Revercomb 35,278.

The three counties yet to complete the canvass are Cabell, Harrison and Kanawha. Revercomb's home county where he held an advantage of better than 7,000 in the unofficial count, Funkhouser led in Harrison and Cabell.

Of the fifty-two counties which have completed their canvasses, twenty showed no change from unofficial returns, while others reported net gains for Revercomb ranging as high as 426 in Fayette, Funkhouser's biggest gain in any canvass was seventy-nine, in Lincoln.

Bill Powell Sings To Hedy Lamour

William Powell sings for the first time on the screen in M-G-M's "Crossroads," which opens today at the Maryland theater.

The star warbles to Hedy Lamour while she plays Bach for a romantic scene in the picture, which is about blackmail in Paris before the present war.

"The last time I lifted my voice in song," the M-G-M star recalled, "it took me fifteen years to recover from the reviews."

It seems the critics who caught Powell's vocal performance in "The Woman Who Laughed" on Broadway opined:

"William Powell had his good moments in the play but his singing was not one of them!"

In addition to Powell and Miss Lamour, the cast includes such favorites as Claire Trevor, Basil Rathbone, Felix Bressart, Margaret Wycherly and H. B. Warner.

Limburger cheese was the final item on Peter the Great's favorite menu.

A PLOT TO BLACKMAIL

Claire Trevor and Basil Rathbone combine their talents to engineer a dastardly blackmail plot against William Powell and Hedy Lamour in M-G-M's "Crossroads," now playing at the Maryland theater. The film tells the story of intrigue and adventure in pre-war Paris.

Lamour Film Brings Thrills, Tunes, Laughs

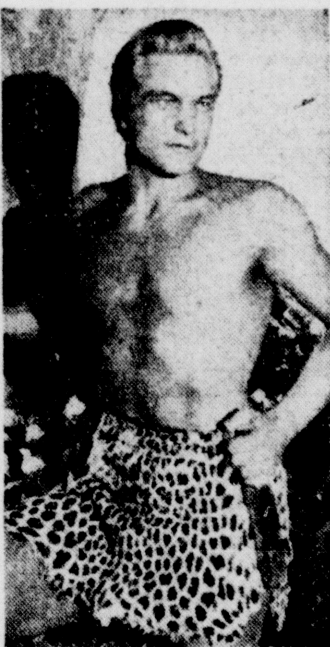

Local movie fans can look forward with certainty to a film combining thrills, laughs and melodies when "Beyond the Blue Horizon," Paramount's new technicolor jungle film settles down for a run Friday at the Strand theater.

That's pretty evident, because Dorothy Lamour is in it, and when Dotty appears in a jungle film, attired in a sarong, it's inevitable that there are going to be some spicing-uping adventure scenes, comedy and new tunes.

Dotty's starring role is bolstered by a top-grade cast including Richard Denning, the sarong-girl's new jungle romance; Jack Haley, the comedian; Patricia Morrison, Walter Abel, Helen Gilbert and Elizabeth Patterson. A new tune that is Lamour introduces is "A Full Moon and an Empty Heart."

The villain of the piece this time is a man-killing elephant whose stamping ground is the jungle spot where certain papers have gone lost which would prove Dotty heiress to a fortune in the United States. The ater with Robert Benchley and John Hubbard.

JUNGLE HERO

Handsome Richard Denning plays an exciting role as Dorothy Lamour's jungle sweetheart in "Beyond the Blue Horizon." Filmed in technicolor, the Paramount adventure romance comes Friday to the Strand theater. Featured are Jack Haley, Patricia Morrison, Walter Abel and Helen Gilbert.

For the very same reasons, however, she is poorly equipped for the first dance she had to master for the musical. It isn't dancing at all, but a series of blundering steps done by a chorus girl to catch the eye and disapproval of her dance director, played by Astaire.

As a result, Rita's early duty was comparable to a Heifetz trying to play every note wrong.

Irene Dunne Turns to Comedy in Picture

Irene Dunne, one of Hollywood's loveliest screen stars, returns to the field of gay comedy in Universal's "Lady in a Jam," which comes to the Liberty theater tomorrow.

Produced and directed by famed Gregory La Cava, the new picture is a worthy vehicle for the comedic talents of the glamorous lady whose comedienne abilities have delighted theater-goers in the past in such delightful film-fare as "The Awful Truth," "Theodora Goes Wild" and "My Favorite Wife."

In "Lady in a Jam" Miss Dunne portrays an irresponsible New York heiress who goes broke and who then proceeds to go West, to the badlands of Arizona, to work an abandoned gold mine in a ghost town. Patric Knowles and Ralph Bellamy are Miss Dunne's leading men, and the supporting cast includes Queenie Vassar, Eugene Pallette and Samuel S. Hinds.

Oddly enough Miss Dunne never believed she possessed comedic talents when she was scoring hit after hit on the screen in outstanding dramatic performances such as "Show Boat," "Magnificent Obsession," "Cimarron," etc. Then came the role in "Theodora Goes Wild" and Irene Dunne, the dramatic star, became Hollywood's leading comedienne.

This is Miss Dunne's first comedy under the guidance of Gregory La Cava. But it is definitely not La Cava's first experience with either Miss Dunne or comedy. He directed her in two dramatic hits, the recent "Unfinished Business" and "Symphony of Six Million," and La Cava is the man who created the memorable "My Man Godfrey."

New Western Drama Coming to Embassy

Surrounded by a topflight cast of sagebrush favorites, the Three Mesquiteers enact their newest western drama for Republic against a vivid background of frontier days in intrigue. The resultant film, "Westward Ho!" which opens tomorrow at the Embassy theater, is one of the most thoroughly entertaining this crack team has appeared in yet.

The Mesquiteers portray their usual engaging roles of cactus crusaders who intervene when they see injustice being done to the weak and defenseless. There are hand-to-hand action thrills, furious rides, and spitting stunts that have the audience gasping for breath.

Interest and action never lags as the theme of "Westward Ho!" is thrillingly unraveled. Director Jack English has skillfully woven the elements of fast action, intrigue, humor and romance, and the well-mounted production is a credit to Associate Producer Lou Gray.

Lois Collier, in the femme lead, reveals definite promise and ability. She makes a charming foil for the Mesquiteers, all of whom vie for her smiles.

Evelyn Brent, a long-time favorite, scores in a villainess type role; once more she proves her ability as an actress of sterling merit.

Balzaretto Scores "Triple" at Fairgo Track

Teco Tack Wins Feature; Betting Shows Increase

Another Huge Throng Expected for Cumberland Day Program Today

With the largest crowd of the current meeting on hand, including the mayors of Hagerstown and Frostburg and a Republican candidate for the nomination for governor, the last half of the Cumberland Fair Association's ten-day race season at Fairgo got away to a good start yesterday.

With nearly 7,000 fans on hand, the deficit in the wagering in comparison with last year's record handle was sliced from $11,694 to $4,502. The betting yesterday totaled $148,140, compared with $140,949 on the sixth day in 1941. With four days to go, the handle to date is $729,704 compared with $734,206 wagered on the first six days last year.

Jockey Willie Balzaretto captured the spotlight by riding three winners—Allentown in the third, Teco Tack in the fifth and El Jels in the seventh—but he lost ground in the race for the gold watch to be awarded the leading rider as "Buddy" Root, the pacemaker, scored a pair of firsts aboard Sweetie Face in the first and Court Blenheim in the sixth and also had three seconds.

Chamblin Tops Trainers
Root now has nine firsts, eleven seconds and six thirds for a total of eighty-four points on a five-three-one basis. Balzaretto, also with nine winners, has four seconds and two thirds for fifty-nine markers. Johnny Harrell is third with forty-six points with George Acosta fourth with thirty-three.

Dan Chamblin captured the lead in the trainers' race by saddling Happy Sea in the second and Ida Time in the fourth. The two victories give Chamblin a total of six, one more than Claude Felner, K. E. Kolshel is third with four. Felner had one win yesterday. Court Blenheim in the second.

Teco Tack, owned by G. Gude, topped the featured Hagerstown purse to become a double winner here. Ridden by Balzaretto, Teco Tack came up from third on the final turn to win by three lengths over Anyway. Randle's Queen was third. The favorite, Marandian, was fifth behind Time Passes.

Mayor Richard H. Sweeney, of Hagerstown, introduced Judge Joseph D. Misch, also of Hagerstown, who presented a trophy to Trainer J. W. Etheridge on behalf of the mayor and city council of Hagerstown.

Teco Tack paid $13.40, $4.80 and $3.20 with Anyway returning $3.80 and $3.00 and Randle's Queen $3.90. The time for the sprint, run over the four and a half furlong route, was 56.2 seconds.

Daily Double Pays $106.60
Root brought in his eighth winner of the meeting in the first race, piloting Sweetie Face to a two-length victory over Queen Minato-oka, 35 to 1 shot which finished second after grabbing and then losing the lead in the stretch. Feeling High, the even-money favorite, was third.

Feeling High set the early pace over the heavy track but relinquished the lead to Queen Minato-oka on the final turn. However, Queen Minato-oka, with Apprentice R. Kirk aboard, moved to deeper footing on the inside, and Sweetie Face grabbed the decision.

The time for the four and one-half furlongs was one minute flat. The payoff was Sweetie Face $6.70, $4.00 and $3.00; Queen Minato-oka $24.60 and $6.90 and Feeling High $2.60.

J. B. Royston's Happy Sea and J. G. Hunt's June Pennant waged a nip-and-tuck battle in the second with Happy Sea, a 10 to 1 choice, winning in a photo finish, Quatre Song, the favorite, was third.

Fans who coupled Sweetie Face in the first with Happy Sea in the second collected a daily double of $106.60. Either Happy Sea or June Pennant set the pace throughout with Quatre Song closing fast to take third money. Rostan, a 9 to 2 choice, got away to a bad start due to the slippery track and was nearly lapped. Hedda Gab was scratched.

Happy Sea paid $23.00, $10.00 and $3.00; June Pennant $4.50 and $3.20 and Quatre Song $2.80. The victory was G. Acosta's fourth of the meeting.

Ida Time Scores
Finishing strong, Allentown, ridden by Balzaretto, won the third by five lengths with Arboreal, a 40 to 1 shot, second, and Certain Party third in a photo with Statement.

Arboreal, with Root aboard, took over going into the first turn and moved in front until the stretch when Allentown moved from second into the lead. Allentown returned $28.60, $9.50 and $5.50; Arboreal $25.30 and $5.80 and Certain Party $3.60.

Leading all the way, Ida Time flashed home in the Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles purse, staying off Chestnut Burr's closing rush. Placement was third.

Col. Nelson Russler presented a watch to W. B. Casagiar, Ida Time's owner, and congratulated Jockey Acosta. Ida Time paid $6.60, $4.30 and $3.60; Chestnut Burr $10.10 and $7.80 and Placement $5.60.

McKeldin Presents Trophy
Setting the pace throughout the mile and a quarter grid, Court Blenheim, ridden by Balzaretto, won the race by a nose over Anyway, which was scratched. Court Blenheim paid $10.10, $6.60 and $4.30; Anyway $7.80 and $5.60.

Feature Women's Golf Tournament

Defending Champion Escapes Elimination by Scoring 2-1 Victory

By DAVE HOFF

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Russell Mann's bid for a second straight Women's Western amateur golf crown was in peril for fourteen holes today, but the Omaha veteran found her game in time to escape elimination in the first round of match play.

She defeated peppery Betty Jane Haemerle, 16, of St. Louis, Mo., 2 and 1, after trailing by two holes at the turn and by one as late as the fifteenth green. Victory on each of the last three holes sent her into tomorrow's second round feature match against Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. D.

Most of Matches Close.
With Sunset Ridge's long par four and par five holes still creating havoc with most of the players' scores, eleven of today's sixteen matches were settled by one up margins, three in extra holes.

The only healthy margin of the day was the 6 and 5 count by which Sallie Sessions of Muskegon, Mich., eliminated Barbara Bathke of St. Paul, Minn.

Victories by 3 and 2 were recorded by Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., over Rena Nelson of Chicago, and by Miss Tainter over scrappy Phyllis Otto of Atlantic, Ia. Arlene Tweet of Green Bay, Wis., managed a two up victory over Mary Jane Garman of Hammond, Ind. Otherwise the matches were contested down to the final putt on the last green.

Marjorie Rowe of Detroit was forced to the nineteenth green to stop the challenge of Shirley Ann Johnson of Chicago. Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., went the same distance before toppling Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill., and the match between Mrs. George Wilder of Kenosha, Wis., and Mrs. Jay Ochiltree of Chicago went to the twenty-first before Mrs. Wilder won.

Many One-Up Decisions
By one up decisions in eighteen holes, Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., topped Mrs. C. W. Watson of Chicago; Virginia Ingram of Chicago eliminated Virginia Nilles of Chicago; Naomi Copie of Sylvania, O., stopped Mrs. Harry Pressler of San Gabriel, Calif.; Dorothy Ellis of Indianapolis won from Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn.; Ann Casey of Mason City, Ia., took Betty Brown of Texarkana, Ark.; Clair Doran of Cleveland beat Peggy Kirk of Findlay, O.; Mrs. Harold Sims of St. Paul defeated Mrs. Charles Harbaugh of Cleveland, and Mrs. Frank Mayer of Chicago edged out Mrs. Charles Denney of Chicago.

Allerdice and Patrick Join Army All-Stars
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 11 (AP)—The arrival today on Second Lieutenant Dave Allerdice, former Princeton passing star, and John Patrick, ex-Penn State blocking back, boosted the Eastern All-Army football squad here to sixty-three as the soldier-gridders went through a lough workout.

Lacking shoes and shoulder pads, Col. Bob Neyland concentrated on non-contact work, and devoted considerable time to the aerial department.

Meanwhile, he dispatched Assistant Coach Bob Woodruff to Washington in an effort to get more talent, especially fullbacks, wingbacks and ends.

Red Sox Defeat Yankees in 11-Inning Battle

Hughson Scores Fourteenth Win In Going Route

Lupien's Single Following Error and Sacrifice Decides Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (P)—Boston's Red Sox, striving to hang on to second place in the American League and keep their pennant hopes alive, carried the New York Yankees into overtime today and won the opener of a three-game series, 3-2, on Tony Lupien's eleventh-inning single.

Tex Hughson, ace of the Boston mound staff, went all the way and registered his fourteenth triumph against three setbacks, although he yielded ten hits.

Lou Pinney tagged Marty Brewer for a homer that sent the Sox out in front in the seventh, but the Yanks pushed over the tying run with two out in the eighth when Joe DiMaggio doubled and Charlie Keller laced a single into center field.

Fireman Johnny Murphy succeeded Brewer and pitched hitless ball until the eleventh when DiMaggio reached first on Rolfe's error, went to second on a sacrifice and came home with the winning run on Lupien's timely bloop. The box score:

Hank Gornicki Holds Reds to Six Hits; Elliott Stars for Bucs

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 11 (P)—Hank Gornicki held the light-hitting Cincinnati Reds to six hits today and the Pittsburgh Pirates gained a 3-1 decision over the McKeehan clan.

For the second consecutive day, Bob Elliott hammered over the runs that gave the Bucs the decision. The Pirates' best runs-batted-in clouters faced Junior Thompson in the fifth with the score tied at one all and two out. Bob whipped a hot single to right to score two runs and Gornicki carried on in a runless manner from that point.

Bert Haas scored the Reds' only run in the fifth on his triple and George Walker's single.

NICKELS COUNT, TOO
PRETTY SOUND tables are known by almost all fair players for estimating the value of their aces, kings and queens, including combinations of them. When they have to count smaller cards, such as jacks, tens and nines, they are often lost. They put no more value on a ten than on a deuce. Yet how often all of us have seen the jack, queen, king and ace fall one the first trick of a suit, making the 10 tops for the second round trick, in the position ordinarily occupied theoretically by the king.

That deal was passed out at more tables than it was bid, in a group of social duplicate players at the Skytop club in Pennsylvania. In the three cases where North opened the bidding, his side got a plus score. One pair arrived at 1-No Trump as shown, making it, one got into 2-Diamonds and made it, and one tempted the opponents to get their feet wet at 2-Clubs, which was beaten two tricks. The main point is that, where North decided to bid, his side profited thereby, and where he decided not to bid, his side suffered.

Most players of either duplicate or rubber contract have learned that they need about two and a half high card tricks to make an opening bid on a deal containing fair distribution, but should have at least three when they have no length anywhere except in one four-card suit. Their tables to measure those amounts, however, do not usually reach down very far into the deck to include cards like guarded jacks, tens and nines.

Just notice the pile of nice intermediate cards in that North hand. It has only two and a half tricks as most honors are generally counted, but in place of an additional king, it has a 10 under K in spades, a potentially useful 10-9-8 in diamonds and a possibly important value in the J-10. Adding these up is like counting your nickels when you want to determine the amount of money in your pocket. Their presence should cause you to bid.

Wessel Pleased Over Progress Made on Airport

CAA Engineer Assures Local Group Government Will Assist in Work

Funds Available To Complete No. 1 Runway and Part of No. 4 Runway

Expressing satisfaction at the progress being made in the construction of the Cumberland Municipal airport, Albert H. Wessel, district engineer for the Civil Aeronautics Administration, yesterday gave assurance to Mayor Thomas P. Conlon, City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett and members of the airport committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, that the Federal government will assist in every way consistent with the war needs of the country at the present time in the final completion of the airport.

Under the project now in operation, Wessel told the group that the WPA expects to complete the grading of the entire field except the leveling of the hillside necessary for the construction of the future airport buildings. Runways numbers one and three will be completed this fall.

The WPA also hopes to be able to complete a portion of the No. 4 runway and complete the construction of runway No. 1 from its present length of 4,300 feet to 6,000 feet, under the project now being formulated.

Funds Now Available

Wessel suggested that the projects be revamped by Stanley Hillock, WPA engineer, and that permission be asked to complete No. 1 runway to 6,000 feet and to build 2,000 feet of No. 4 runway. Funds are now available for this work.

It was pointed out that when these items of work are completed, the major construction of the airport will have the completion of the grading for the building area, completion of the No. 4 runway and the No. 2 runway.

The last two projects mentioned are considered comparatively minor items compared to the other work that is planned. It is of course, hoped that when the time arrives to begin work on these minor items that the work will be carried on with the assistance of the Federal government.

Wessel conferred with city officials and members of the airport committee, namely James C. Shriver, Oscar Gurley and Arthur Weber yesterday during one of his periodical inspections of the airport.

The CAA engineer expressed the opinion that the War department did not need the airport at the present time due to the fact that it is not completed. He is hopeful, however, that the War department will be in a more receptive mood after the airport project is further advanced.

Sixty Per Cent Black-Topped

Hillock last evening stated that approximately sixty per cent of the 4,300 feet of runway No. 1 is black-topped. He expressed the hope that the remaining 2,500 feet will be black-topped by September 1.

Man with Borrowed False Teeth Is Accepted by Army

A happy ending to yesterday morning's newspaper story of the draftee who went to Baltimore from Local Board No. 2 for induction with a set of upper false teeth given him by a local funeral home was reported by P. Emmett Fahey, chief clerk of Board No. 2.

The man, whose name was not released, successfully passed all tests yesterday in Baltimore and is now a member of Uncle Sam's Army. His case is a far cry from those cases of some men who do everything possible to get out of serving in the army when their "number is up," Fahey commented.

State Guardsmen Issued Thompson Sub-Machine Guns

Two Local Companies Open Rosters for Hundred Extra Men

Company C and Company D, local Maryland State Guard units, have each been issued three new Thompson sub-machine guns, as a part of their new equipment.

These weapons, issued for use by non-commissioned officers and for training all enlisted men and officers in their operation are regarded as the latest in rapid fire or automatic small arms. The weapon is actually a combination pistol and rifle and uses .45 calibre automatic pistol ammunition. It has a fire power equivalent to approximately 50 shots per minute.

When the state guard was formed here, arms were issued only to fifty men in each company. These weapons were 1917 model. Springfield rifles of .30 calibre. However, several months ago, the government recalled these arms and the state issued the guardsmen double-barreled 12 gauge shot guns to replace the rifles.

While in training camp last week, the guardsmen were informed by battalion officers that rifles will be issued this fall to augment the shot guns, and guardsmen believe when the rifles arrive, they will be properly armed and equipped to meet any situation which might arise.

In addition to the sub-machine guns, some of the non-commissioned officers are armed with .45 calibre pistols of World War vintage, and several more of these are needed. It is believed they will be furnished to the guardsmen as new weapons are provided the army.

The two local guard units are seeking about fifty recruits each, under an expansion plan for the state's military force. Any men between the ages of eighteen and fifty who are residents of Maryland and citizens of the United States will be considered for enlistment. Application should be made at the armory on South Centre street tonight at 7:30 o'clock when the guard holds the regular weekly drill session.

City and County To Provide Funds For Hospital

Court Gives Council Authority To Issue Emergency Bonds

A state of emergency has been declared in the proposed expansion of Memorial hospital here, and the city council of Cumberland has been given permission by the circuit court to issue $37,000 in bonds to complete the building project.

Allegheny county commissioners have been asked to appropriate a similar amount and after the court declared that the bonds could be issued by the city, the county commissioners instructed their attorney, William S. Jenkins to take necessary steps to provide the county's share of $37,000.

The county plans to borrow the amount from a bank, which must be preceded by advertising the board's intention of spending money in excess of the sum levied under the fiscal year's budget.

The additional money for the hospital will be used to finish two upper floors of the addition now under construction. The original plans for the addition did not provide for finishing the interior of these two floors, but additional hospital needs have made immediate expansion necessary, officials believe.
